UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS

FAYETTEVILLE, ARKANSAS

TO THE POST-WAR WORLD . . .

We who are undergraduates in college today are facing a grave challenge, a challenge not only for the present but for the future. It is our opportunity and our responsibility to carry on the principles of the four freedoms, those principles which have arisen out of the world chaos, those principles upon which the future of our civilization must rest.

To every one of us the four basic freedoms have become more than symbols. We have all seen the importance, the absolute necessity, for their adoption, not only for ourselves but for all nations and for all peoples. To achieve the four freedoms we must depend upon international action and co-operation; for in this competitive society of which we form an integral part, we need the assistance of other nations as much as they need ours.

In this, as in the last war, we are fighting for democracy, and we know that this time we must make the peace a lasting one. We are today thinking internationally, and we must continue to do so. We must not, when the war is over, turn our backs on the rest of the world.

The opportunity of the university undergraduate lies in the fact that the American university is an institution of the people, one not limited to a select few but offering the possibility of education to all types of people from all walks of life. The fact that its research and its teaching belong to the people is one of our great sources of democratic strength. We have all seen the disastrous effect on the German people of the distortion of the German institutions of learning, and we should realize from this the importance of democratic education.

All of us have been given the privilege of an education, but few of us realize its advantage. In the years after the war, we must strive to develop our educational institutions and continue their progress, so that our children and grandchildren will better realize the principles at stake today.

It is in our colleges that minds are developed and perfected, and with a host of liberal-minded students who have set freedom as their common goal, we shall be given a better realization of the world order of which we are so vitally a part. We in college today are being taught the principles that must be adopted to preserve peace. We are learning the costs of war with regard to both men and money, and we are now called upon to advance this learning. "'Tis education forms the common mind; just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined."

We are now fighting against tyranny of exclusive ideas, for freedom in the post war world needs free and liberal minds, and minds can not be free so long as they are constricted by narrow thoughts. Our country was founded with liberty as the basic element, and we must keep this always in mind.

So to the world of tomorrow, a world free from doctrines denying our heritage, free from restrictions on learning and progress, free from oppression and tyranny; to a world in which people may live at peace and strive for a better life through education, we dedicate this book.

FOREWORD

In spite of difficulties resulting from the war, both in the publication of this annual and because of the restricted activities of the students, we were determined that a RAZORBACK should be published this year. We believe that there is much good in the continuity of this traditional yearbook, for it binds together memories that will never be forgotten . . .

ADMINISTRATION AND CLASSES —

Many of our professors have been called into the service, and, along with thousands of our boys, are fighting all over the world. But with these men as their symbol, more and more students are attending college now, and many veterans have already returned to resume their studies. With a 10% increase in enrollment, growth of the University has continued . . .

ACTIVITIES — With students showing a more active interest in school life, and with a constant desire for something different, that intangible faction of college life, school spirit, has been more noticeable this year than at any other time since Pearl Harbor . . . ORGANIZA-

TIONS — Regardless of the increase in the size of the Student Body, campus organizations have been hard hit by the war. With members dropping out almost every day, the few old members left in many groups had the responsibility of seeing that their standards were kept up to par . . . ATHLETICS AND MILITARY — With the departure of the "junior birdmen" early this spring, the last vestige of army life disappeared from our campus, leaving only the ROTC students in uniform. Since our team ranked high in the football conference this year, and second in the basketball conference, "Arkansas never quits" is well our motto. It is our belief that the sons and daughters of the University, now in the service of our country, want us to hold fast to the traditions of our school. This we have tried to do. We submit this war-year volume of the RAZORBACK as our contribution to those traditions, hoping that the students of today, those who are now in the service, and those who are later to serve our country will find pleasure in these pages.

A Message from the Governor

Aggressive state pride is like a yeast—it grows and spreads and can not be contained. An aggressive, enthusiastic state pride among our two million people would be a priceless asset in the building of a greater Arkansas. Of course, all Arkansans have native state pride, but not enough. We need to stir this, culture and implement it, and then loosen and direct it to help build Arkansas.

In some states this goal has been achieved. The pride of a Texan, for example, is fierce and deep-rooted. Although smaller than Texas, Arkansas need not bow to Texas or any other state in the Union, for, erasing the comparison of size, we can more than hold our own.

What other states have two magnificent and different mountain ranges, with a sublimity far more stimulating than Arizona's Grand Canyon, and a friendliness more heart-warming than Tennessee's highly advertised Smokies? What other states have celebrated, curative mineral water so important to the nation's health that it is controlled by the federal government? What other state can boast ninety-seven per cent of the nation's great war metal, aluminum, stores of thirty-five valuable minerals, and the only diamonds in North America?

We're third in the nation in the production of cotton, rice and spinach; we grow the largest water-melons on earth, lead the nation in the production of strawberries; and Arkansas peaches are famed all over the nation. Arkansas is one of the big timber producing states, ranking third in the South and seventh in the nation in the production of forest products. We have quantities of petroleum and natural gas, scores of game preserves and two of the nation's greatest fish hatcheries. Our fishing calendar offers everything from exciting mountain trout to the 200-pound fighting Alligator Gar.

Don't let anyone outside Arkansas boast of his state's natural resources, and attraction, and get away with it! Inform yourself on all of the facts about our native state, and become a sales booster. That's what we need—two million well informed enthusiastic salesmen for Arkansas. Be proud you're an Arkansan! You have every right to be proud.

BEN LANNEY

DR. ARTHUR M. HARDING

President

A year after his graduation from the University, Dr. Harding joined the faculty as a mathematics instructor. He has been associated with the University in a variety of capacities ever since, until in 1941 he was named President. His has been the responsibility of coördinating a university at war, a responsibility which, because of the constant changes incident to war-time education, has necessitated the able leadership which Dr. Harding has brought to this position.

First row: John Clinton Black, Fred I. Brown, Jay Dickey, Louis McDaniel, P. E. Murphy.
Second row: Raymond Orr, Col. Euclid Smith, Herbert Thomas, Judge H. S. Yocum.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Five appointments to the Board of Trustees were made this year by Governor Laney, completing the necessary membership of ten. The length of term may be for a ten year period, but expiration dates are so arranged that one member's term expires each year.

W. W. Sharp, Brinkley attorney and planter, succeeds Harry L. Ponder of Walnut Ridge. Mr. Sharp is the father of Jennie V. Sharp, a sophomore in the college of Business Administration.

John Clinton Black of Rogers, who received a BEE degree with honors in 1921, was named to the position formerly held by J. H. Snapp, Fitzhugh. Mr. Black is manager of the Southwestern Gas and Electric Company.

Raymond Orr, president of the Athletic Mining and Smelting Company, Fort Smith, replaces Hugh Park of Van Buren while P. E. Murphy, banker of Junction City, succeeds Judge John G. Ragsdale of El Dorado. Two sons of Mr. Murphy are University graduates, Leo, BA '26, and Jack, BSBA '31.

Herbert Thomas, Fayetteville insurance executive, was re-appointed to serve for his second term. His daughter, Jane, is a sophomore in Arts and Science.

Oldest board member, Fred I. Brown, is a founder of the Arkansas Foundry Company and a graduate of the College of Engineering. His appointment expires in 1951.

Col. Euclid Smith, Hot Springs, has been appointed to serve until 1952.

Three remaining members of the board are attorneys. They are Judge H. S. Yocum, El Dorado, who will serve until 1949; Louis McDaniel, Forrest City, until 1947; and Jay W. Dickey, Pine Bluff, until 1948.

Marion Wasson, treasurer of the University, Fayetteville, acts as secretary.

ARTS and SCIENCES

Dr. H. M. Hosford, in addition to his duties as Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and as Vice-President of the University, again this year directed the service program at the University when the ASTRP arrived on the campus in the summer of 1944.

Dean Hosford came to the University as head of the mathematics department and was made Dean of the College in 1938. In 1943 he succeeded Dean Julian S. Waterman as Vice-President of the University. From his office on the second floor of Old Main, Dean Hosford directs the College of Arts and Sciences, which has boasted the largest enrollment on the campus since the University was founded in 1871.

Besides offering courses that lead to a liberal education, the college also supervises many of the courses for pre-professional curricula.

Old Main houses the departments of language, physics, speech, journalism, art, English, and history. In other buildings on the campus are the departments of philosophy, psychology, chemistry, zoology, botany, and music.

Because of his service in the last war, Dean Hosford has been unusually qualified to act as a capable adviser for the boys in his college who have tried to make their college work fit in with the military program.

AGRICULTURE

Dean W. R. Horlacher, head of the College of Agriculture, is also director of the Agricultural Extension Service and thus is kept in constant touch with the agricultural interests of the state.

The College of Agriculture has headquarters in two buildings on the campus—one for Agriculture and one for Home Economics. The University Experiment Farm is located about two miles north of the campus, and there the agri boys get a chance to try out the new farming methods they learn in the class room. They raise cattle, pigs, oats, wheat, and barley. Dairy products are marketed at the University dairy, thus giving the students the chance to follow their products from the farm to the market.

The Home Economics building is one of the newest and best-equipped buildings on the campus. Nursery school and the bacteriology lab are located in the basement, a living room and a dining room in connection with the foods lab are found on the first floor, and clothing labs and the department for practice teaching are found on the third.

The College of Agriculture has made a special effort to develop courses in the University curriculum for the veterans of World War II. Since the war started, the College has directed campaigns to help the war effort in getting enough food raised for the war emergency.

BUSINESS ADM.

Dr. Paul W. Milam, Dean of the College of Business Administration, came to the University of Arkansas in 1930, as an instructor. He was made Dean of the College of Business Administration in March, 1944, after serving for six months as acting dean.

The College of Business Administration is one of the newest on the campus. It was organized as a two year School of Business by the late President Futrall and Dr. C. C. Fitchner in 1926, and it was only in 1936 that it became a four year college.

When the ASTP took over part of the Commerce Building for its administrative offices, the members of the Business School did not mind, because they had moved most of their classes to the new Classroom Building.

The College offers courses in the fundamentals of accounting, commercial law, economics, finance, typewriting, shorthand, and bookkeeping. Outside work for these subjects is done in the College's own library.

Commerce students celebrate their own Commerce Day, noted for its dollar marks smeared all over the campus. On this day they elect a queen, ignore classes, hold a dance, and put out a special edition of the Guild Ticker, official publication of the College.

EDUCATION

Dean H. G. Hotz heads the College of Education. Noted for belonging to practically every committee on the campus, Dean Hotz is chairman of the University committee on Postwar Education and chairman of the State Organization Committee for Conference on Postwar Plans for Higher Education in Arkansas.

The College of Education had its beginning in 1898, when it was entitled the Department of Pedagogy. Not until 1918 did it lose this title and become the Department of Education. Then three years later the name was changed again to the College of Education.

Headquarters for the College are found in Peabody Hall, where the prospective educators act as teachers as well as pupils. In the primary and high school department of the University Training School, headed by C. H. Cross, the student teachers forget their theory and struggle with practice.

Also under the wing of the College of Education comes Agricultural Education, which has its own offices in the infirmary building.

An outstanding service of the College of Education is the Teachers' Placement Bureau, which annually helps find schools for the graduates.

ENGINEERING

Dr. George Patrick Stoker, Dean of the College of Engineering, has done his part to keep the College of Engineering in step with the war effort and to make it one of the leading engineering colleges in the Southwest. This is his seventeenth year as Dean of the college.

Engineering has been one of the most outstanding courses offered by the University since its establishment on the campus in 1871. The first engineering training given by the University was in civil and mining engineering, but in a short while mechanical replaced the mining, and in 1885 electrical engineering was added. The last addition was chemical engineering. In 1912 all the courses in CE, ME, EE, and ChE were combined into the College of Engineering.

Forgetting classes for one day each year, the Engineers paint the campus with shamrocks on St. Pat's Day, and "Erin Go Braugh" becomes the password. The boys elect a St. Pat and St. Patricia and the order of the Knighthood reigns for that day over all festivities, which include a bonfire, convocation, and dance. For weeks before this great day the boys vie with each other to see who can grow the longest beard, and on St. Pat's day the winner receives a kiss from St. Patricia.

GRADUATE

Dr. John Clark Jordan, Dean of the Graduate School, heads the youngest school on the campus, established on the University campus in 1927, under the direction of the late President J. C. Futrall and Dean Jordan, who at that time was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Before the graduate students were gathered together into their own college, they were handled by a committee. Now they have a dean and a council to direct the curricula of the students working for their higher degrees.

The original enrollment of the graduate school was only 34, but just before the war it had reached its peak when in 1941 the graduate student body had jumped to over three hundred.

Requirements of a Master's degree from the University of Arkansas are thirty weeks' residence, an oral examination, and in most cases a thesis. The University offers advanced degrees of Master of Arts or Sciences, and professional degrees in four branches of engineering.

Besides being Dean of the Graduate School, Dr. Jordan is head of the English Department and teaches a full time schedule of classes.

This year he has acted as host in the Music Room in the Student Union, where classical music was played on request each afternoon.

LAW

Dr. Robert A. Leflar, Dean of the Law School, was a professor of law at the University of Arkansas until he left in 1942 for Washington, D. C., having been appointed to the War Relocation Authority. He returned to become Dean in the summer of 1944. Dean Leflar graduated from the University of Arkansas with a B.A. degree, and received his LL.B. and S.J.B. at Harvard University.

In 1924, fourteen lawyers-to-be assembled in the basement of Old Main for their first law class with Julian S. Waterman, Dean of the Law School until his death in 1943. Twelve years later, in 1936, the lawyers moved from their establishment in Old Main into the former Chemistry building, which has been known as the Law School ever since.

The enrollment of the School of Law dropped considerably in the months following Pearl Harbor, but is now beginning slowly to return to normal.

The Law library contains nearly 20,000 volumes at present. The Law School publishes the Arkansas Law Bulletin, containing legal articles, comments on recent Arkansas cases, and discussions of legislation.

Two United States Senators, Claude D. Pepper, Florida, and William Fulbright, Arkansas, are former members of the Law School faculty.

PERSONNEL

Allan S. Humphreys, Dean of Men, also acts as associate professor of chemistry for the University. His regular duties as Dean include personal counseling, fraternity problems, student government advising, housing and employment.

Besides all of this, Dean Humphreys has acted as advisor on the Military Services to all men students. He has helped prepare boys for the reserve tests, and kept campus men up to date on the latest dicta of the draft boards. All deferments have been handled through his office, and he kept the reservists advised as to their status.

Jeannette Scudder, Dean of Women, has taken a special interest this year in helping the women secure material about the various branches of the women's military services, the Cadet Nurses Corps, and war time jobs for women in industries. She has tried to help the women students to understand their responsibilities toward the war effort and post war work.

Miss Scudder does all of this in addition to her regular responsibilities of counseling, advising various student organizations, supervising the housing of the women students, and interpreting their needs and interests to the administration and faculty.

JACK BERRY, President

A year ago last March all the big and little campus politicians went around tearing their hair (if they happened to be Opposition party) or gloating (in this case, New Deal).

The two party system had gotten a little off-balance as almost every organized house on the campus crowded into the New Deal fold. The election was more or less a farce, anyway you look at it. But the Opposition came out on top in two contests with Joan Dorris, prospective editor for the next year's RAZORBACK, and Jack West a lone voice in an all New Deal Senate.

Last fall, things were even more bitter. The freshman election had to be postponed, due to a small argument. Anyway, the New Deal took a clean sweep of freshman officers, in each case by a margin of 25 votes. Both parties had their freshmen well trained this year. About this time, members of the two parties just about quit speaking to each other. New Dealers put out a little sheet "What's In a Name?" and later found out that they were breaking the rules by doing so, as neither party is supposed to publish any political material. All this time the Opposition got madder and madder, which didn't do any good unless maybe some of them had too low blood pressure to begin with.

In the spring election, held this February, the Opposition party gained a little more ground, winning three offices, which boosted their morale considerably.

Announcing Berry's Brainstorm—last but by no means least—Berry beat his New Deal henchmen over the head until they agreed to pass an amendment to the constitution guaranteeing the minority party or parties at least a one-third minority in the senate. If this minority is not elected at the general election, the president is to appoint the remainder from the minority party candidates for the senate and for associated student offices.

In the spring, Bill "Parson" Flynt, basketball star, took over the office of president.

Association of Women Students

The third time was the charm for the Association of Women Students as it wound up a very successful third year under the able leadership of Virginia Shamel.

Shamel took over the job of president last spring in time to plan the annual Spring Festival which took place in the Greek theater on May 11. Five hundred women students went to hear Miss Virginia Reinecke, counselor of women at Oklahoma University, talk and to meet the new members of Alpha Lambda Delta, Phi Chi Alpha, Phi Upsilon Omicron, and Sophomore Council. They also watched the impressive tapping ceremony when new members of Mortar Board were chosen.

At the first of this year, AWS held an open meeting for all women students at which members of the executive board were introduced and students were urged to work on club committees. Following this, student-faculty teas were held in the Union once each month. Also at the beginning of the year, the annual orientation program and party was given for all new women students.

The Sixth War Loan Drive, which AWS sponsored on the campus, was probably the most obviously successful of all its activities. The campus backed the drive enthusiastically and went 800% over the quota. Eager Kappas bought the most and were allowed to name three of the eight ambulances. Martha McCrary and Shirley Jones were chairmen of this bond drive.

The scholarship committee, headed by Ellen Wadley, sponsored the giving of vocational guidance tests to all women students. Schedules were made out for each house, and a large number of students took these tests.

The annual vocational conference this year was held February 3 and 4. Prominent business and professional women from Arkansas and many other states came to the campus to make talks and conduct panel discussions on various fields. As part of the conference, a tea was held for speakers, students, faculty, and townspeople, which had a huge attendance, testifying to the success of the conference.

The entire campus of the University may give thanks to the Social Committee for its splendid work of planning a well-rounded social life for the year. This committee has in charge all of the social functions held in the Student Union. Under the leadership of I. E. Moore, who was also head of the committee last year, this group has arranged and sponsored many all-student dances on Friday and Saturday nights throughout the school year.

The various organizations on the campus may rent the ballroom of the Student Union by handing in an application for a date. The committee may pass on the application, then reserve the date on the calendar of social engagements. At the beginning of each new quarter there is published a calendar of social events which are to occur during the quarter.

The Social Committee has successfully gotten around the problem of fewer men on the campus this year by giving several vice-versa dances. The girls were glad to have a chance to show the boys what an ideal date was like, while the boys were glad of a chance to let the fair sex foot the bill for a change. One of the most successful of these was the Valentine's Dance, which caused such a commotion on the campus. But we did have it on a week night—and it was a success.

The committee has begun some new functions this year. They have attempted to popularize the use of the game room and grill for playing card games on Friday and Saturday afternoons and nights by making cards available to any desiring to play. Secondly, one section of the Union grill is roped off for dancing to the music of the juke box.

One of the biggest events put on by the Social Committee during this or any year was the traditional Homecoming Dance. It was held in the Field House, for this was one time during the year when everybody and his cousin came out to celebrate.

The Social Committee meets every other Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock in the Student Union.

The RAZORBACK 1945
University of Arkansas
Fayetteville, Arkansas

Dear Miss Dorris:

These are my selections as the four most beautiful women at the University of Arkansas. The choice represents hours of sitting around enjoying the pictures, a long siege of bogging down under the job of choosing four, any number of heated discussions with other members of the staff and, in at least one choice, tossing a coin to decide between two entries.

In your letter you ask me to give my reasons for each of the four choices. I am not an overly cautious person, but I should rather not stick my neck out that far. May I simply state my choices, leave the room quietly and go my way in peace?

I am enclosing, at your insistence, the only picture of myself that I can find around here. I could look around for one made by a commercial clip-joint, but in all of those the photographers have brushed the twinkle out of my eye and all the haggard lines from my clean-cut Tar Heel face.

Thank you for a very pleasant chore.

Very sincerely yours,

THE COACHES

GLEN ROSE (Arkansas '28)

In his first season as athletic director and head football coach of the University of Arkansas, Glen Rose guided the Razorbacks to their most successful season since 1937. Rose, who served 22 months in the army, returned to his alma mater last February after receiving a medical discharge. Rose entered the U of A in 1924 and starred in football, basketball, and baseball. He was an All-Southwest end in '27 and All-Southwest basketball guard in 1926-27-28. After coaching at Jonesboro college, he returned to Fayetteville as a member of the coaching staff in 1929. Rose became head basketball coach in 1934 and his teams won five championships. Twice they played in the Sugar Bowl cage classic. Rose also became line coach in 1934, and held that position until entering the army in April, 1942. While in the army he coached the powerful Camp Grant team, and his outfit was rated the strongest of army service elevens. Rose favors the "T" formation, but sticks to the principle of fitting systems to men, rather than men to systems. He is a native of Siloam Springs, but "grew up" in North Little Rock where he graduated from high school. The Razorback chieftain was an honor graduate here at Arkansas. He is married and has one son. Rose has a master's degree, and claims the distinction of having studied under Knute Rockne.

Like Rose, "Van" is an alumnus of Arkansas and is remembered as one of the finest of Razorback guards. After completing his college career, he joined the pro Yellowjackets of Philadelphia and later played with the Green Bay Packers. His first coaching job was at DeQueen. From there he moved to Cisco, Texas, and stayed until the fall of '36, when he was named head coach at Little Rock. After five years at the capital city, he joined the Razorback staff as freshman coach, and is now an assistant coach, specializing in the line. Van Sickle hails from Morris, Oklahoma, is married and the father of one daughter. He was named an All-Southwest guard in 1929. "Van" also serves as chief scout of rival teams.

Tomlin was born in Washington, D. C., and was a prep school star at Muskogee, Oklahoma, high school. Tomlin went to the West coast for his undergraduate work, and lettered at end and fullback for Oregon State. His first high school coaching job was at Westville, Oklahoma, and from there he moved to Maud, Oklahoma. He stayed there five years, and twice had undefeated football teams. In '42, Tomlin joined the Arkansas staff as freshman mentor, and in 1943 he was named acting head coach, after George R. Cole entered the Navy. Last year when Rose returned, Tomlin was named assistant coach. His nickname is "Bud" and he weighs close to 260 pounds. "Bud" is married and the father of two daughters and a son.

Completing their most successful season in years, the 1944 Arkansas Razorbacks played an important role in the Southwest conference title race for the first time since 1937. The wartime squad, made up of 17-year olds, 4-F's, 1-C's and army air corp reservists, was in the thick of the title race up until the final game and eventually wound up third in the conference with two wins, two losses, and a tie. The season record was five wins, five losses, and a tie.

When football practice opened last fall, Coach Glen Rose, the fourth head coach in four years, had ten lettermen on hand. Arkansas was listed as a dark horse by most of the experts, but as the season progressed, the Razorbacks became a definite title threat.

Mike Schumchyk, playing his first year of football, won nationwide recognition for receiving an All-Southwest team berth and honorable mention on several of the All-American teams. He also received "the outstanding lineman of the week" award. Henry Ford was given a second team berth on the All-Southwest team.

Alton Baldwin led the Razorbacks in points scored, 30; yards gained rushing, 358; and yards gained receiving passes, 310. Tommy Donoho was second to Baldwin in both scoring and yards gained rushing. Lamar Dingler caught the most passes, 18, while Mike Schumchyk was second in both number of passes caught and yards gained receiving passes. Gordon Long was the leading passer, as he completed 54 out of 159 passes for 887 yards.

Five seniors, Bob Cope, Jim Young, Marvin Lindsey, Leon Pense, and Lamare Dingler, wound up their collegiate football careers. All played good football and were vital parts of the Razorback squad.

The eight men who received their second varsity letters are: Backs Alton Baldwin and Leon Pense; Tackles Charles Johnson and Jim Young; Guards Henry Ford and Bob Cope; Center Earl Wheeler and End Lamar Dingler. The fourteen who received their first varsity letters are: Backs Paul Anderson, Colmore Beane, Loui Bayne, Tommy Donoho, Calvin Lane, Gordon Long, and Frank Schumchyk; Ends Mike Schumchyk and Melvin McGaha; Tackles Glenn Halstead and Carroll Jones; Guards Marvin Conger and Frank Lambright; and Center Bill Thomas.

Arkansas opened the 1944 season with an intersectional clash against the Missouri Tigers in St. Louis on September 23. As was the rule most of the season, Arkansas was a pre-game underdog, but the wide-awake Razorbacks won a 7-6 decision despite the fact that the Tigers held an edge in the statistics. Henry Ford and Jim Young provided the margin of victory. In the third quarter Ford broke through to block a Tiger punt and recovered it behind the goal line for a touchdown. Young then kicked the extra point, which proved to be the margin of victory, as Missouri failed to convert after their touchdown.

With the victory over Missouri under their belts, the Razorbacks were given an even chance of defeating the Oklahoma A. & M. Aggies, but the Aggies, led by All-American Bob Fenimore, ground out a 19-0 triumph. Played under the lights in Taft Stadium, Oklahoma City, before 12,000 people, this was the only game of the season that Arkansas played at night. The Razorbacks had the better of the playing the first half, but in the second half the Aggies, with Fenimore in the throwing role, opened up a passing attack. The Oklahoma boys finally wound up with three touchdowns.

The first week-end in October saw 33 Razorbacks traveling to Fort Worth to open Arkansas' conference season against the Texas Christian Horned Frogs. Under a broiling Texas sun, which brought the mercury up to the 90-degree mark, the Razorbacks pushed the Horned Frogs all over the gridiron only to be held to a 6-6 tie. The Horned Frogs scored first after a 46-yard march in the opening period. Arkansas threatened seriously near the end of the first half, but the gun stopped the Razorbacks just inches short of the goal. In the second half Arkansas kept pounding the TCU line and finally right after the start of the fourth quarter Tommy Donoho crashed over from the two-yard line. Arkansas' attempted placement was blocked and the game wound up 6-6.

In their first home game of the season, the Razorbacks lost 27-7 to the powerful Norman Navy Zoomers, composed of former college and professional stars. The Razorback line put up a stout defense, but the Zoomers' aerial attack proved to be too much as the Zoomers scored two touchdowns in the second period and two more in the fourth. Arkansas' only touchdown came in the last quarter when Gordon Long passed to Paul Anderson in the end zone.

The Texas Longhorns were the Razorbacks' opponents in the annual Little Rock game, and with 17-year old Bobby Layne passing, the Texas boys scored a touchdown in each of the first three quarters to defeat Arkansas 19-0. The Texas line, averaging well over 210 pounds, rushed the Arkansas passers and held the backs in check, so that Arkansas was never able to penetrate past the Longhorns' 25-yard line. The game, played in perfect football weather, attracted 11,000 fans.

Resuming an old rivalry, Arkansas tangled with Mississippi in Memphis. Arkansas, definitely favored to win, had to come from behind twice before winning 26-18. Arkansas marched the opening kickoff back to score with Donoho going over, but the Rebels came right back to also score. Near the end of the first half Ole Miss scored another touchdown, but with only seconds left in the half Gordon Long threw a pass to Alton Baldwin, who outraced the secondary to score. Ole Miss scored again in the third period, but Frank Schumchyk and Donoho scored two touchdowns in the final quarter to give Arkansas the winning margin.

Playing inspired football, the Razorbacks won their first conference game of the season when they took a 7-6 victory over the Texas Aggies in College Station. A. & M. had a big edge in the statistics, but a strong Arkansas defense and seven Aggie fumbles kept the Cadets away from pay dirt every time but once. Arkansas' touchdown came in the last quarter when Gordon Long passed to Mike Schumchyk in the end zone, and Jim Young, for the second time, kicked the extra point that brought victory.

The up-to-then unbeaten Rice Owls were rudely upset by the Razorbacks as Arkansas pounded out a 12-7 Homecoming victory before 8,000 fans. Rice scored its only touchdown with 45 seconds left in the first half. Arkansas dominated the first half play, holding Rice without a first down in the opening period. However, Arkansas' first touchdown came in the third quarter when Frank Lambright dashed 38 yards with a recovered fumble. A few plays later, Mike Schumchyk partially blocked an Owl punt and Arkansas took over on the Rice 16. A pass from Long to Dingler put the ball on the two and Loui Bayne crashed over for the winning touchdown.

Still in the Southwest conference race, Arkansas was expected to have little trouble with SMU, but a greatly under-rated and highly inspired Mustang team blasted Arkansas out of the title picture by winning 20-12 on a rain soaked field in Dallas before little more than 500 spectators. Arkansas scored first with Baldwin going over, but the heavy Mustang backs drove through large holes in the Arkansas line for two touchdowns in the second quarter. A pass from Long to Dingler gave Arkansas a touchdown in the third quarter, but SMU scored again in the fourth period to take a safe lead.

An Orange Bowl-bound Tulsa Hurricane overpowered the Razorbacks 33-2 in Tulsa before a Thanksgiving Day crowd of 16,000. Arkansas stayed in the game for five minutes, but then the Tulsa boys started passing and the game was over. The Razorbacks' two points came on a safety in the second quarter when a Tulsa player recovered a fumble behind his own goal line.

In the final game of the season, Arkansas crushed Arkansas A. & M. 41-0 in Fayetteville. The victory gave the Razorbacks a .500 percentage for the season. The navy and marine powered Aggies outplayed the Razorbacks the first quarter, but then the Razorbacks opened up. A pass from Long to M. Schumchyk gave Arkansas the first touchdown. Then Baldwin scored three touchdowns, two by rushing and one on a pass. Frank Schumchyk scored the fifth touchdown on an intercepted pass, and Raymond Hicks scored the final touchdown on a pass from Bayne.

Coach Lambert's team received national recognition, due largely to Lambert's mastery of cage strategy along with an abundance of material.

BASKETBALL

The Porkers have done it again. For the third time during the last four years they received a bid to compete in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament at Kansas City. For the second time they have been runner-up to the Western champions. Last year an accident kept them from competing for the 1943-44 National title.

As usual, their season was good, they broke records, and they were classified among the nation's top teams. Despite the toughest schedule in Arkansas history, they finished the season with a seventeen won—nine lost record. This included four games with the No. 1 college team of the nation, the Oklahoma Aggies. Also, Phillips "66", National A. A. U. champions for the third consecutive year, played the Razorbacks two games. Arkansas finished second in the conference to the Owls of Rice Institute. Eight of the Porkers' twelve conference games were played in Texas, a decided disadvantage. Their conference record was nine won—three lost.

Highlights of the season were many. Perhaps the first one, chronologically speaking, was the Razorbacks' conquest of the powerful City College of New York five in Madison Square Garden during mid-December before 16,000 fans. The final score was Arkansas 59—CCNY 47.

Following this were their victories over the strong Denver and Oklahoma Universities in the Oklahoma City All-College tournament to win the runner-up trophy. The Oklahoma Aggies defeated Arkansas in the finals 43—34. Sweet revenge came as soon as the Aggies traveled to Little Rock, where the Red-and-White of Arkansas triumphed 41—38 to furnish the third highlight of the year.

Fourthly, and finally, the Arkansans' were victorious over Oregon University, Pacific Coast champions, in the National tournament to climax the season. Again, Oklahoma A. & M. defeated Arkansas in the tournament finals. The Porkers received their second runner-up trophy and medals for each of the players as awards for their outstanding playing in the tournament. Thus, the two tournaments and the victories in New York and Little Rock were the outstanding highlights of the Porkers' 1944-45 basketball season.

The season's biggest disappointment came in Houston, Texas, where the Rice Owls won both games of the two game series to sew-up the championship of the Southwest conference. Because Rice's Naval trainees could not leave their station long enough to play in games originally scheduled to be played in Fayetteville, the games were switched to the Owls' home town. Several sports authorities believe this to be the "break" that was largely responsible for the Razorbacks' losing the championship. Last year Rice and Arkansas were co-champions with a record of 11—1 each.

Since the first and second teams of the Razorbacks were so evenly matched, Coach Lambert would often substitute an entire new team at once. However, long George Kok, 6-foot 10-inch center, Mike Schumchyk, and "Preacher" Bill Flynt were the main cogs of the winning combination. Kok received a first-string berth on the All-Southwest team by being second in the conference scoring race with an average of 19.8 points per game. Only Rice's All-American, Bill Henry, 6 feet 8 inches, outscored him. George scored 439 points during the season for a 16.8 points per game average to smash the previous all-time Arkansas scoring record.

Captain Mike Schumchyk was second in Razorback scoring with 212 points, while Flynt slightly trailed him with 206 points. Both were second team All-Conference selections. Flynt was among the first five in the conference last year. His three points in the last ten seconds of the Oregon game won the hard-fought affair 79-75 to send the Razorbacks into the Western finals. Big Mike was noted for his excellent rebound work.

Kok also won the annual Razorback free-throw award by making good 65 out of 95 attempts.

Coach Lambert started the season with six returning lettermen and two transfers, along with several first-year men. In pre-season predictions, Arkansas and Rice were favored to be at the top in the conference race.

In the twenty-six games, Arkansas won seventeen of them and scored 1518 points for an average of 58.4 points per game. Their opponents scored 47.1 points. In conference play, Arkansas had an average of 65.7, with their all-time high being made against Baylor University—the final score, Arkansas 94—Baylor 28. This year's Arkansas Razorbacks were the highest scoring five in Razorback history.

Besides Kok, Flynt, and Mike Schumchyk, several other members of the squad showed great ability. Earl Wheeler, Ocie Richie, Ken Kearns, Charles Jolliff, Melvin McGaha, Frank Schumchyk, and Jady Copeland participated in practically every game, and were dependable throughout the season.

McGaha was inducted into the Army prior to the tournament, and Freshman Tony Byles was his replacement on the traveling squad.

INTRAMURALS

With increased participation in the intramural race, intramurals definitely took an upward climb this year. With the entrance of the Junior Birdmen and the return of Razorback Hall, too many teams participated for a round-robin schedule and two leagues had to be formed, with a playoff game to decide the champion in each sport.

Under a different set up from last year, there were two student intramural managers, Marshall Measel and Phillip Dougherty, and a director of intramurals, Guy Lehn. These three ably guided the intramural program until March, when Coach Lehn resigned and Dr. Eugene Lambert became a director of intramurals.

Managers Phillip Dougherty and Marshall Measel

Losing only one game, PiKA took the football title by defeating Section B in the playoff game. The volleyball race was close all the way, with Theta Tau proving its superiority in the playoff.

The Independents took the basketball diadem, but PiKA came right back to take the boxing and wrestling titles.

Hughes Owen, Beta Theta Pi, defeated John Pattillo, SAE, to take the ping pong singles championship, and Pattillo and King Basham, SAE, won the ping pong doubles title by defeating Jimmy Wirtz and Jack Land, Sigma Nu.

PiKA held a large lead at presstime and seemed destined to break the three-year Sigma Chi monopoly on intramurals. With the departure of Junior Birdmen, PiKA took Section B's place as runner-up. Sports yet to be played include track, softball, golf, and snooker.

MAJOR JEFFERSON SMITH

MILITARY STAFF

The military program definitely went to war this year, with the result that the number of both personnel and military students took a sharp cut. The six member military staff of the fall of '43 had been cut to two in the fall of '44. It was headed this year by Maj. Jefferson D. Smith, graduate of Texas A. & M., who joined the Arkansas staff only last year. He was assisted by Capt. J. C. Wilder who has been with the University military staff for several years.

It was the decrease in the number of military students which caused the cut in the staff. Even though in the fall of this year there were 220 enrolled in ROTC, by Christmas the call to active duty had reduced the number to 80.

There was necessarily a constant turn over in cadet officers, and the program of work could not be planned for more than a three-month term because there is only a small percentage of students who enroll in ROTC now who complete the two-year course.

Branch Immaterial Instruction prescribed by the army is taught and all basic courses are offered by the department.

The military staff managed to keep pretty busy up until March with the boys in ASTRP, or the "Junior Birdmen", as they soon came to be called.

In June, 1944, the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program brought 334 boys to the campus who had not yet reached their eighteenth birthday. They attended school in civilian status and received academic training prescribed by the War Department. At the same time they lived like the army and received the same military training that is offered the ROTC.

In March, 1945, about 150 finished the course. At the time of graduation about one-third of them went into active duty while the rest returned to their homes to await the orders to report for active duty.

Major Smith received a reserve commission from ROTC when he graduated from Texas A. & M. Until he was called to active duty in December of 1940, he was employed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Dallas. His first military assignment was at Ft. Sill reception center where he remained for two years.

From December '42 until June '43 he was commanding officer at the Army Administration School at Jonesboro. Later he was personnel adjutant and commanding officer of the STAR unit and 1892nd ASTP at Arkansas State College, also in Jonesboro. He was promoted to major in November of 1943 and came to the University of Arkansas on December 26, 1943.

CAPTAIN WILDER

CADET OFFICERS

The cadet officers came and went, but mostly went—into active service. Advanced ROTC was taken off the campus two years ago when all the reservists were called to active duty, so again this year the cadet officers were from the freshman and sophomore classes.

All during the year there was a constant changing in the organization of the group and in the cadet staff. Like last year, again this fall it was started out as a battalion, headed by Cadet Major M. A. Lilly. Under Cadet Major Lilly were two captains who headed each of the two companies. They were Cadet Capt. Marvin D. Thaxton and Cadet Capt. Charles R. Walker.

Under them were the following lieutenants: Marvin L. Brown, James B. Cochran, William D. Diggs, Dual B. Hart, Barry J. Hawkins, Odell Pollard, James L. Stone, and Fred S. Wetzel, Jr.

By the beginning of the second quarter, a large percentage of these boys were no longer in school, including Cadet Major Lilly.

The group was reorganized into one company first under Thaxton and later under Stone. No longer is there a Cadet Major, the company now being under a Company Commander.

At the time school opened there were 220 men enrolled in ROTC, and these composed the two companies which made up the battalion. By the time it was necessary to reduce it to one company there were only 80 enrolled.

This was the second year of the ROTC accelerated program on the campus. The first year the program had an enrollment of 300.

Following Army decrees, all advanced courses of ROTC had been dropped and the regiment was reduced to one unit called a Branch-Immaterial. Basic training common to all branches of the service was the only course offered.

Draft Boards and Army and Navy Reserves changed the civilian status of the men students so fast, thus rapidly changing the organization of ROTC, that it was impossible for a year-book to keep up with it.

SPONSORS

VIRGINIA LEE
The Major's Lady

Proud Chios snatched back the title they have held for eighteen straight years when petite Virginia Lee from Pine Bluff was chosen as Cadet Major Atlas Lilly to be his "lady" at the annual military ball. Chi Omegas cheered; they had held the honor as long as there had been a military ball until three years ago when Winifred Crawford, Pi Phi, was elected in a heated campaign. Last year the highranking cadet officer, Vaile Harrison, chose his wife—naturally. But this year, wearers of the horseshoe could again claim top representation.

Pi Beta Phi made a contribution, however, in the person of winsome Jane Pratt, freshman from Newport. Jane was chosen by her Sigma Chi pinmate who is also from Newport, Marvin Thaxton, as sponsor of ROTC Company A.

Sponsor of Company B was Bette Barron, brunette Kappa Kappa Gamma from Rogers, selected by the company commander, Cadet Captain Charlie Walker.

At the military ball, held in the fall, Major Lilly and Virginia Lee led the grand march immediately before intermission. The dance, one of the brightest spots on the 1944-1945 social calendar, also featured close order drill by "eager beaver" ROTC boys.

The history of military sponsors is a long and bloody one. The lucky ladies used to be chosen by the quaint system of election, each house on the campus entering a contestant in the bitter race. Politicking reached a new high during these elections as the pretty little girls made eyes at ROTC boys, upperclassmen and freshmen, each hoping to be the chosen one.

JANE PRATT

BETTE BARRON

After the race in which Pi Phi's entry emerged battle scarred but victorious, it was decided that the high ranking ROTC cadet officer should choose his own "military lady". So the next year a girl was chosen who wasn't even in school. She had been here long enough, however, she being Chi Omega Mary Croom who had attended the U of A the five years previously.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

The Pan-Hellenic Council is an organization made up of all sorority presidents on the campus and one girl elected from each house. The main purpose of this group is to promote friendliness and co-operation among sororities.

Due to the unusually large enrollment of women students this year on the Arkansas campus, it was necessary to increase the quota of sororities—raising this year's quota to forty-one. The purpose of the quota system is to equalize the size of the five sororities on the campus.

Making all rush rules binding on both rushees and sororities is Pan-Hell's main function. All rules and regulations are discussed before the council every two weeks under the capable advice of Miss Jeanette Scudder, Dean of Women, and advisor to Pan-Hellenic.

This fall Pan-Hell started off by bringing all sorority girls together at a tea, giving the girls an opportunity to meet each other and forget the idea of cutting each other's throat.

AWS and Pan-Hellenic were joint sponsors of the women's vocational conference in February, proving very helpful to women students in all fields. Outstanding women from Arkansas and from surrounding states were guests, and the Pan-Hellenic discussions gave everyone much needed enthusiasm. Pan-Hellenic has also served as a guide to the newly organized Junior Pan-Hellenic.

Each spring Pan-Hellenic has a workshop attended by old members and new members for the coming year. The new girls are instructed in Pan-Hellenic's work and plans for success in future years. Officers are selected through the rotation system, which gives every sorority the presidency every five years.

CHI OMEGA

Psi Chapter

Fifty years ago this past April, Chi Omega was founded at the University of Arkansas, being the first sorority on the University campus. From its founding on April 5, 1895, to April 5, 1945, it has grown to be the largest national women's social fraternity in the United States.

Well established in the red brick mansion at the top of Maple Street hill, the Chios live a gay life, managing to squeeze a few hours of study into their social life. The pledges who live in the famous attic have most of their good times in the wee hours of the morning. Most loved person in the house is Mrs. Bennie Alexander, house mother, better known as Mother "B".

Being the only sorority to fill its quota of forty-one, the Chios had an eventful year. In the early fall the initiates entertained with a dinner dance for the pledges; then came Homecoming, and with it the annual pledges' party, which proved to be one of the most hilarious and novel parties of the year. Entitled "Heyday in Hades", the party was given in the basement of the chapter house, which was decorated in true "Hades" fashion. Just before adjourning for the Christmas holidays, the Chios held their annual Christmas formal in the ballroom of the Student Union, and their annual faculty tea at their house.

At the close of the football season, the football team was entertained by the Chi Omegas at an open house, and on George Washington's birthday all men on the campus were asked to "drop in" between the hours of 2 and 4.

Most exciting event for the Chi Omegas this year was the celebration of their Golden Anniversary, held April 7. The day began with a "brunch", given in the house; the afternoon was taken up with parties for the actives and alums, and the climax of the day was the banquet given at the Washington Hotel. On Sunday afternoon, a tea was held at the chapter house honoring alums, special guests, and Miss Jobelle Holcombe, English professor and a founder of Chi Omega.

Chios have claimed numerous honors on the campus, and are particularly proud of their President, Mary Helen Moore, well known on the campus because of her varied activities and high standing in Home Ec School. Two Chios are among the peppy cheerleaders, Virginia Lee Best and Miriam Orr; Betty Branch was chosen as one of the RAZORBACK beauties; Joan Dorris edited the 1945 RAZORBACK; Leslie Hampton reigned as Miss Arkansas at the Ark.-Texas game; and Faye Littlefield boarded a train to Tulsa to be Miss Tulsa at the Ark.-Tulsa game.

Outstanding seniors of Psi chapter, who were chosen to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, are Virginia Pattillo and Nancy Hill, who both have a long string of honors beside their names. Nancy was chosen Chi Omega's Outstanding Senior for 1944-1945, an honor bestowed each year by the chapter.

The Eleusis, a national publication, is sent to all chapters four times a year. Chi Omega's flower is the white carnation, and their colors cardinal and straw.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

Delta Iota Chapter

When the rushees entered the English style buff brick Delta Shelter last fall, they were greeted by attractive Mrs. Alice Perrin. Mother Perrin, besides her duties as house mother, is a member of PEO and the Outlook club, which is composed mainly of the wives of faculty members.

Tri-Delta boasts BWOC's Virginia Shamel, president of Associated Women Students, former editor of the Guild Ticker, and member of Guidon, Mortar Board, and Phi Chi Alpha; Louise Scurlock, president of Tri Delt, president of Pan-Hellenic, member of the Student Affairs committee and the Student Senate; and Dora Dean Johnson, president of YWCA, member of the Pan-American League, and on the Executive Board of AWS.

Besides these girls, "Vivi" Terry is president of Boots and Spur, Dojelo Crabaugh is president of Alpha Lambda Delta, and the rolls of the Spanish club, Orchesis, and WAA are almost filled with Delta girls.

But the activities of the Tri Deltas extend beyond these scholarly lines. In the fall, the initiates entertained the pledges and their dates with a dinner at the chapter house, and following the dinner, the annual fall formal was held in the Student Union. A gold Delta crescent with the three stars adorned the mirror of the ballroom. After the dance, the girls serenaded all the fraternity houses.

Another of their annual events was the buffet supper given in honor of the football boys after the Homecoming game, where Rosemary Weis and June Harlan, cheerleaders, helped serve.

Other social affairs included a spooky Halloween party given by the pledges at the chapter house; a banquet at the Washington Hotel, commemorating Founders' Day, which was Thanksgiving Eve, 1888; a sweater hop for fraternity men; Delta Week, when the pledges are given a party every day for a week by the members; and an open house for the "Junior Birdmen".

Cupid really played his hand well at the Delta House, with thirteen girls receiving rings from their respective fiances.

Beth Craig was chosen as one of the four RAZORBACK beauties, and served with Jimmie Lou Williams and Betty Herring, as a maid to "Miss Arkansas" at the Arkansas-Texas game in Little Rock. Janie Brainerd, newly elected president of Delta Delta Delta, was selected by the student body to represent Arkansas at the annual Texas Roundup, held at Austin, Texas, April 5 and 6.

The girls' basketball tournament offered another challenge to the athletically-minded girls who had won the volleyball tourney of the spring before, and they started to work and won first place.

Delta Delta Delta was founded at Boston University in 1888, and the local chapter was granted a charter in 1913.

Three endowment funds, the National, the Trident, and the Visiting Endowment Funds, are used for altruistic purposes among college women. The three publications are: The Trireme, The Triglyph, and The Trident.

DELTA GAMMA

Alpha Omega Chapter

Delta Gamma was founded on January 2, 1874, at the University of Mississippi, and the Alpha Omega chapter was installed on the University of Arkansas campus in 1930. Their pin is the golden anchor, their flower the cream colored rose, and their colors bronze, pink, and blue.

Alpha Omega of Delta Gamma is housed at 1002 West Maple, in a buff brick southern colonial style complete with tall white pillars, Greek letters above the door, buzzers in each room, a snack bar downstairs, and a game room, where much entertaining is done.

Many social events have been given and attended by the D.G.'s. This year one of their favorite parties was the Christmas formal dinner dance and breakfast held in the house and followed by a serenade.

Both the house and the lodge have been redecorated this year in the Regency period. Each room is complete with built-in chests, sliding closets, and folding beds—a sitting room by day, a bedroom by night. The Delta Gamma Lodge directly behind the house is an annex to the house itself, and celebrates every occasion, even Mardi Gras.

Mother Pettus, Delta Gamma house mother, has been with the chapter for twelve years, and is a Delta Gamma mother in every sense of the word.

Delta Gamma's president, Virginia Taylor, is vice-president of the senior class, treasurer of Pan-Hellenic, a member of the Social Committee, Election Board, Commerce Guild, and Boots and Spur.

Jackie Dobbs, Delta Gamma rush chairman, is a member of the Social Committee, Boots and Spur, Blackfriars, and new business manager of the 1946 RAZORBACK.

B. W. Hayward, besides being an accomplished dancer, is an education senator, vice-president of Orchesis, an officer of WAA, and member of Boots and Spur.

DG also boasts Dorothy Ann Hamilton, Interfraternity Queen; Edwyelle McKay and Mary Ann Johnson, cheerleaders; Fritz Truesdale, junior class secretary and secretary of Boots and Spur; Jeannie Hooper and Sue Sorrells, student senate members; and "Stevie" Echols, publications board member.

DGs were happy with the results of the spring election in February, claiming the following officers for next year: Betty Woods, vice-president of the senior class; Maxine Glazner, sophomore class senator; and Mary Lynn Taylor, secretary of the sophomore class.

Pinned are Virginia Taylor to Allen Mallioux, PiKA; Shirley Binkley to Thomas James, PiKA; Mary Ann Johnson to Jimmy Terry, Lambda Chi; and Dorothy Ann Hamilton to "Brushwood" Nelson, Sigma Nu.

Barbara Hunt and Bill Collie just thought they surprised everyone, when they suddenly decided to "take the vows" and were married this spring.

Delta Gamma provides a $60,000 student loan fund to assist worthwhile undergraduates in colleges all over the United States.

Their official publication is the Anchora.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Gamma Nu Chapter

The KKG's theme song for 1944-45 could well be said to have been "Ac-cent-tchu-ate the Positive" judging from the way they went all out for campus and social activities.

Mary Ella Crook is both a BWOC on the campus and in the Kappa house. Besides being elected president of the associated women students in the spring and to membership in Mortar Board, "Lulla" was re-elected president of Kappa Kappa Gamma for her second year.

Kappa also claims several other presidents. Dottie Bumpers is president of YWCA; Martha McCrary will serve as president of Pan-Hellenic for 1945-46; Peggy Kerr is president of both the Pre-Med Club and Orchesis; and Marianne Wertheim heads Pi Kappa, honorary journalistic society.

Ellen Wadley, pride of the Kappa house, came home one day with a Phi Beta Kappa key. She also wears a Mortar Board pin and was selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Ellen was assistant editor of the Traveler, scholarship chairman of the AWS Executive Board, and a member of Pi Kappa, Lambda Tau, and YWCA.

Starting the year, pledge Baer Coldren got the ball rolling when she journeyed down to Little Rock to be crowned "Miss Texas" at the Arkansas-Texas game.

And then there was Homecoming—Kappa took the honors, and Arkansas took the game, Kappa's Bette Barron was crowned "Miss Rice" at the half, and Mary Ella Crook, Glenn E. Livingston, and Gayle Puterbaugh were maids to the Queen. The annual buffet supper, held in the chapter house for Kappas and their guests, gave the finishing touch to a successful week-end.

The KKG's went all out for the Sixth War Loan Drive on the campus by raising more than three times the quota for the entire campus. Kappa, raising $7,804, was given the honor of naming three ambulances. Martha McCrary was in charge of the successful campus drive.

The light-and-dark-blue girls maintained their long-standing reputation of giving the best dinner dances on the campus with their annual Christmas affair at the chapter house.

Rush Chairman Doris Owens was chairman of this year's women's vocational conference, sponsored by AWS, which was pronounced one of the most successful conferences yet to be held here.

Gayle Puterbaugh reigned as "Dream Girl of PiKA" at their annual formal, and the following Sunday, Kappa sang its way into first place in the campus song fest.

Dan Cupid worked well in the Kappa Kappa Gamma house this year by maneuvering five marriages, five engagements, and six pinnings.

The power behind the throne was Kappa's new house mother, Mrs. Ella Mae Watson, affectionately called "Mamacita" by the girls.

Kappa is the second oldest sorority in the United States, having been founded at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois, in 1870. This sorority was installed on the Arkansas campus April 16, 1925.

Publications are The Key and The Hoot.

PI BETA PHI

Arkansas Alpha Chapter

This year the Pi Phis proudly kept their reputation for scholarship, having one of the highest grade points on the campus. Their pledges, having won the scholarship cup, followed in the intellectual footsteps of their sisters.

The arrow girls had a social calendar that kept them pretty busy. Saturday afternoon, September 29, found thirty-four Pi Phi pledges being informally introduced to the University men at large at a sweater hop given in the Union ballroom by the initiates. On November 28, the pledges returned the favor and entertained the members with a riotous court session in the basement of the chapter house. A reception for faculty members, open houses for fraternity men, and several after-the-game affairs for the Razorbacks followed before the annual Christmas formal in December. After the dance, Pi Phis and dates gathered at the chapter house for breakfast. It was early in April that rushees flocked to the Arrow Lodge for a full week-end of fun, climaxed by a Saturday night party in the chapter house.

Managing to keep the Traveler editorship in the Pi Phi house for the second consecutive year, Lynnette Wilson put out the weekly copy of the Traveler. Betty Teeter, an outstanding student in the agri world and a member of Mortar Board, assisted in editing the Agriculturist, and sister Betty Jo Oglesby served as business manager on the staff of that publication. Insuring the Pi Phi's position on Publications Row, Betty Gary was elected RAZORBACK editor in the spring election.

Several Pi Phis were listed among the campus BWOC's. "Prexy" Freda Stafford found time to keep a finger in more than a few campus pies, namely politics, and "Little Jean" Pitcock, head cheerleader this year, had her place in all the big campus deals, and managed the society department of the Traveler. Lynnette Wilson, Mortar Board, thrilled her sisters by being selected for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, and later in the year was chosen to be a Phi Beta Kappa. Sally Steward was chosen a RAZORBACK beauty by Marion Hargrove; and Jean Ahlemeyer was elected "Freshman Queen".

Some wore 'em with pledge pins and some chained them to their arrows, but many frat pins floated toward the Arrow Lodge this year.

There were wedding bells for: Maggie Spikes and Lt. George Henry; Patty Ann Green and S1/c Ben Butler, Sigma Chi; Anne Smith and James Quessenbury; Rosemary Carlson and Charles McNair, PiKA; and Christine Graham and Lt. Baron Thorpe, Sigma Chi.

Mothering the Pi Phis for the past eight years, Mrs. C. M. Clifton was a Pi Phi at Indiana before she came to Arkansas.

Pi Beta Phi was founded at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois, on April 28, 1867. There are eighty-eight chapters in the United States today, Arkansas Alpha having been organized in 1909.

Little sister organization of the older girls' Pan-Hellenic Council is Junior Pan-Hellenic, started on the campus just last year. Membership is composed of the president and one elected delegate from each sorority pledge class. At their meetings the girls discuss ideas for promoting good fellowship and friendship between the pledges of the sororities on the campus. The girls avail themselves of the opportunity to obtain help from their big sisters' organization and frequently meet with Senior Pan-Hellenic.

As their contribution to the war effort, Junior Pan-Hellenic sponsored the sale of War Bonds and Stamps in the different sorority houses and also one day a week in the Union so that everyone might buy them. This year they also sponsored a Bridge Tournament, participants being girls from every organized house.

Wednesday night is exchange dinner night. Three pledges from each house go to another sorority house for dinner, rotating each week. This gives all the girls a better chance to get acquainted with members of other sororities.

The president of each pledge class is a permanent member for one year, but the delegate, if she is initiated, must resign in favor of the president of the new pledge class. To determine the first president of this organization during its initial year, names were drawn out of a hat. It was decided that after that year the offices would rotate as in Pan-Hellenic Council; the sororities receiving them in a pre-arranged schedule.

The motto of Junior Pan-Hellenic could well be "Get 'em young and train 'em right" for it is the members' hope that in having friendly inter-sorority relationships between the pledge classes, some of the cut-throat competition might be eliminated from sorority life.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Composed of a president and two men from each fraternity, the Interfraternity Council has dedicated its work to the establishment of continued good relationship between Greek letter organizations on the campus and to co-operative work together as a unit.

The council's meetings are held the last Wednesday of each month in the Student Union, and at the meeting of the council in February new officers were elected to serve until the first regular meeting of the council in the summer quarter. Leroy Nelson, Sigma Nu, was elected president; Jim Sloan, Sigma Chi, vice-president; Pete Oliver, Kappa Sigma, secretary; and Allen Mallioux, Pi Kappa Alpha, treasurer.

By working together each year the council sponsors a number of programs for the student's entertainment. This year the council accomplished this by giving two student dances, one in November and one in January.

Coincidental with the dances was the selection of the group's official queen, who was crowned at the annual Interfraternity dance held in the Student Union ballroom in January. This year the honor fell to Dorothy Ann Hamilton, sophomore Delta Gamma, who reigned over the gala occasion. The queen is chosen by the council from candidates submitted by each sorority on the campus.

Again this year the quota system, which caused so much disagreement year before last, was not in effect. The decreased number of male students has done away with the need for a quota upon the number of men in fraternities.

At present, the council has a committee at work on the rushing rules for next fall, and by the new method old rules will be revised and new ones added, in an attempt to do away with some of the evils of rush week for the boys.

KAPPA SIGMA

Xi Chapter

First fraternity on the University of Arkansas campus, Xi chapter of Kappa Sigma, was organized here in 1890. Instrumental in the founding were Dr. J. C. Futrall, former president of the University, and Dr. George Vaughan, of the Law school. Dr. Charles Richardson, one of the founders of Chi Omega, was among the early prominent members, and the chapter existed as the Richardson Club during the period from 1901-1903 when fraternities were barred from the campus.

The national organization of Kappa Sigma was founded at the University of Virginia in 1869. Scarlet, white, and green are the fraternity colors, and lily-of-the-valley their flower.

From among the wearers of the star and crescent come many of the leaders in campus activities. President Pete Oliver, returned veteran, is a member of the Student Affairs Committee, secretary of the Interfraternity Council, and a member of Gamma Iota.

Another KayZee who's well known on the campus is I. E. Moore, business manager of the Arkansas Traveler, and one of the behind the scenes managers of the New Deal party. It's a question as to whether I. E. is more interested in politics than he is in women.

Kappa Sigs have always had the reputation for having the best parties on the campus, and despite the dent made in their group by Uncle Sam, carried on this year true to tradition. Soon after rush week was over, they started off with a hayride, soon followed by their Homecoming party for all old grads visiting the campus.

The classic of all times is the Kappa Sigma annual Christmas formal, long remembered by every lucky girl who rates an invitation. The dance is held in the Chapter House, which is decorated with pine and cedar, and over which a Christmas spirit prevails. (Most of all on the second floor, we have been told.)

A common love among the Kappa Sigs, and the rest of the campus for that matter, is Mother Driver, who has been on this campus for many years, and is rightfully proud of her two Kappa Sig sons. She keeps all the KayZees now in service posted on the latest campus occurrences.

Fond as they were of their pins, three of the good brethren decided to share some of their pride with certain girls. Jim Compton pinned Nancy Coleman, Chio, and proving this to be a serious match, they were married early in March. Following in their footsteps, as far as the pinning is concerned, were Jack McNeil and Dot Baker, Kappa; and Bill Ball and Bettie Sherman, Chio.

Kappa Sigma's national publications are the official monthly magazines, Caduceus, The Star and Crescent, Address Book, Homes, History of Kappa Sigma, The Song Book, and The Kappa Sigma Pledge Book.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Gamma Chi Zeta Chapter

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at the University of Boston, Boston, Massachusetts, in November, 1909. Arkansas's Gamma-Chi Zeta was chartered on this campus November 7, 1923, when members of a local fraternity, Theta Phi Delta, petitioned the national organization of Lambda Chi.

The fraternity colors are purple, green and gold, and the flower is the white rose.

Lambda Chis eagerly welcomed back Mother Sherrill this year, after a year's absence. She has been with the boys since 1930.

Social functions of the year began with a hayride, and were highlighted by the Christmas party just before school adjourned for the holidays. Several open-house and record parties were held at the house during the year. Of course, the mud fiends (coffee-drinkers to you illiterates) and their mighty bull sessions every night with Mother Sherrill cannot be omitted.

Several boys in the house have held campus offices, with many Lambda Chis claiming membership in Pi Mu Epsilon, Phi Eta Sigma, Tau Beta Pi, ASCE, AIEE, Theta Tau, Alpha Chi Sigma, and Commerce Guild. John Ragsdale was president of ABC, and Bill Glassburn was president of the Engineering Council.

Many of the "junior birdmen" were pledged by Lambda Chi, but left in March to pay heed to Uncle Sam. Ray Hall is back, though, proving that he really likes the AU campus, especially now that he's in civilian clothes.

"Rags" Ragsdale, besides being prexy of ABC, is past president of Lambda Chi itself, and a member of Theta Tau, Blackfriars, Interfraternity Council, and the Engineering Council. He was elected by the Engine-school to reign over Engineers' Day festivities as St. Pat, one of the highest honors accorded to any Engine student. "Rags" is pinned to Dora Dean Johnson, Tri Delt.

Leader of this group, Don Shay is another well-known figure on the campus. He and Joyce McKinney, Kappa, were happily pinned, until Joyce graduated in December—leaving Don on his own in Fayetteville.

At the national interfraternity conferences before the war, Lambda Chi was cited as the fraternity initiating more annually than any other; as the fraternity having the largest number of active chapters; and as one of the fraternities consistently high in scholarship.

Service and fraternity are the aims of Lambda Chi Alpha. National headquarters are at Indianapolis, Indiana.

Every month the local chapter publishes a news letter entitled the Gamma Chi News. National publications are the pledge manual, officers' manual, a booklet entitled "Dynamic Youth", and the official publication, Cross and Crescent.

Faculty members of Lambda Chi are Dr. D. M. Moore, Dean John Clark Jordan, and George Stubblefield.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Alpha Zeta Chapter

"It was down in Old Virginny," on the campus of the University of Virginia, where Pi Kappa Alpha first saw the light of day. The first chapter was organized in 1868, and Alpha Zeta chapter made its appearance on the University of Arkansas campus November 2, 1904.

Most of the lassies who come out on the fire-escapes and balconies to hear the serenades, claim that the PiKA's really warble a good tune. And when the lads went over to the Union and walked away with first prize in the Interfraternity Sing, this was proven to be true. But this was not their only honor, as they took first place in intramurals, proving their ability as sportsmen as well as songsters.

PiKAs point with pride to their prexy, Charlie Williams, a junior on the campus this year. Charlie's pinmate, Gayle Puterbaugh, Kappa, was chosen early this spring as the "Dream-Girl of PiKA".

Many of the members of the football team and the basketball team are wearers of the garnet and gold. Mike Schumchyk, Alton Baldwin, Charles Jolliff, Charles Johnson, Kenneth Dearn, Ocie Richie, George Kok, Frank Schumchyk, are among the many who have made Arkansas students proud to watch a football or basketball game.

Ocie Richie and George Kok were elected captain and sub-captain respectively for next year's basketball team.

Jack Holt, first year law student, was one of the privileged few asked to join Blue Key, men's honorary, early this year. Deciding that it's the "real thing", Jack and Jac Steele, Delta Delta Delta, became engaged soon after Christmas.

"Marty" Measel, next year's Senior class prexy, was one of the managers of intramurals this year.

One of the largest fraternities on the campus, it's no wonder that these boys rate first when it comes to pinnings. Those who settled down to a steady life this year are Charlie Williams and Gayle Puterbaugh, Kappa; Allen Mallioux and Virginia Taylor, Delta Gamma; Thomas James and Shirley Binkley, Delta Gamma; Charles Jolliff and Janet Armstrong, Kappa; and Alton Baldwin and Lenelle Stewart, Pi Phi.

At the first of the year the PiKAs moved from their former home into the one next door, and later on in the year decided that they missed their other house too much. Soon after Christmas, they returned to their old homestead. 'Tis said that one of their favorite hobbies is shouting at the girls across the street in Carnall Hall.

Mother Payne is a true love of each PiKA, and she in turn thinks more of her boys than anything else in the world.

Official PiKA publication is The Shield and Diamond, which comes to the boys five times each year.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Alpha Upsilon Chapter

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded at the University of Alabama on March 9, 1856, with its first chapter north of the Mason-Dixon line appearing shortly before the Civil War. Since then, it has grown to become the world's largest social fraternity, with over 55,000 initiated members and a total of 114 chapters.

The Record, official publication of this fraternity, has a circulation of over 30,000 copies per issue, meriting a prominent position in the magazines of the Greek-letter world.

The "Sleep-and-Eat" boys had an eventful year, beginning with a dinner dance immediately preceding fall rush. Many informal social functions led up to the big Homecoming party, a reunion for visiting Sig Alphas and their brothers in school. For their annual Christmas party, the Minerva men and their dates exchanged gifts—topping the occasion with mistletoe and nogg.

In spite of losing a few more men to the armed services at the first of the new year, the chapter added new pledges to the roster in January, and in addition to political wangling, gave a Honky Tonk party which was the must of every co-ed's life.

The spring formal in the Union Ballroom came off March 10. In keeping with past celebrations, a banquet was held honoring the founding of Alpha Upsilon chapter, which took place in 1894.

Of course, the Sig Alph "valley" was the site for many gatherings, same being the SAE's favorite location for their frequent beer busts.

Number one man in the house was Ed Mc-

Bryde, who came home from the war to become president of SAE and the Commerce Guild, a holder of a Blue Key, and a member of the Interfraternity Council.

Marty Dyke, SAE's contribution to the Engine school, has a long list of honoraries following his name. He was elected chairman of the honor council and presided over the spring quarter Honor's Day convocation.

Another innovation for the SAE's this year was a new house mother, Mrs. Beard, who did much to make living gracious in the stately white house.

The boys mourned the death early this year of Mother Jody White, for she had been their house-mother for many years and was loved and respected by all the campus.

Making a dent in the campus manpower, quite a few lads put out their pins, namely Buck Weather-ton, Jimmy Boyd, Brigham Young, and Charles Crockett. Their respective pinmates are Rose Reddock, Pi Phi; Anita Shafer, Kappa; Bod Bemis, Chio; and Pattie Purl, Pi Phi.

Their colors, purple and gold, their flower, the violet, and their symbol, Minerva and the lion, all signify the honor and prestige of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

SIGMA CHI

Omega Omega Chapter

A member of the famous Miami Triad, and one of the oldest Greek letter fraternities in existence, Sigma Chi was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, June 28, 1855. The other two members of the Miami Triad are Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta.

The proud wearers of the White Cross founded their Omega Omega chapter on the University of Arkansas campus in 1905. Its colors, blue and old gold, and its flower, the white rose, are familiar emblems wherever they are seen, and "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" is perhaps the best-known of all fraternity songs.

It's pretty hard sometimes on organizations when they don't quite make their grades, and have their social privileges jerked; rules can be pretty disheartening. But the Sigma Chis showed the campus this year that you're not exactly an outcast if you don't have your privileges.

Howard Bonds, Rick Campbell, and Maurice "Footsie" Britt returned to school this year after long and varied absences. "Footsie" has made every Arkansan, every American, and every Sigma Chi, to say the least, proud of him, for he has won almost all of the honors that the Army has to offer. He is truly a Number One Hero of this war.

Sigma Chis are rightfully proud of their President, James Sloan, who is also president of the senior class, chairman of the Social Committee, president of the Newman Club and a member of various other campus organizations. Sloan was one of the students chosen for National Who's Who this year.

Jack Berry, student body "prexy", has a long list of honors after his name, but is better known for his work in politics on the campus. Being president of the student body, he was automatically president of the senate, and complained all year because no one approved of his ideas. But early this spring, his biggest and best brainstorm, an amendment to the Constitution, was passed by the Senate and by the entire student body. Berry was happy but the Opposition party was happier. Now Berry's dream may come true—a little more life and excitement in the senate!

Not running true to form this year, the Sigma Chis acted a little shy about taking such steps as getting pinned. Possibly more had the idea, but only two had the nerve: Jim Sloan and Betty Teeter, Pi Phi; and Jack Steele and Jan Proue, Kappa.

Mother Witt, the guiding light in the house, has been with these boys for four years. Taking a personal interest in Sigma Chi and each boy individually, Mother Witt is loved by all.

Sigma Chi "national" edits four entirely different publications, containing news, information, and history. These are: The Magazine of Sigma Chi, The Sigma Chi Bulletin, The Sigma Chi Directory, and The History of Sigma Chi. Although Omega Omega does not itself have a publication, it contributes to the magazines monthly.

SIGMA NU

Gamma Upsilon Chapter

"To believe in the life of love, to walk in the way of honor, to serve in the light of truth, this the life, the way, the light of Sigma Nu, this is the creed of our fraternity."

Sigma Nu arose at Virginia Military Institute January 1, 1869, and was first known as the Legion of Honor. Since its start the fraternity has grown until it now has a total of ninety-seven chapters scattered all over the United States.

Gamma Upsilon chapter was founded on this campus December 15, 1904, and is loyal to its colors of black, white, and gold. Favorite flower of the Sigma Nus is the white rose.

Sweetest Sigma Nu memories of 1944-1945 include the hay-ride to Lake Wedington and the White Orchid formal. Many happy Sundays have been spent at the Sigma Nu house chatting with Mother Bass and eating those good meals. Mother Bass has been calling the Sigma Nu Lodge home for only a year, but in this short time she has won the hearts of all who know her.

As has every fraternity, so has Sigma Nu contributed her share of brothers to fight for freedom. This year Barry Hawkins, Charles Crockett, At Lilly and several others postponed their education to take a crack at the Japs.

The followers of the White Star boast of such campus personalities as Leroy "Brushwood" Nelson, president of the Interfraternity Council; Ronald "Pete" Gardner, business manager of the Razorback Directory; and James Wirtz, capable "prexy" of Sigma Nu.

Jimmy Wirtz hails as a transfer from the University of Arizona and has made a name for himself on this campus by being elected to membership in Blue Key, Student Senate, A. B. C., and represents Sigma Nu on the Student Council and on the Cheerleading squad. These keep him well occupied but he still has time to keep his Sigma Nu brothers on the straight and narrow path.

Henry Ford, guard on the football team, brought glory home for his outstanding playing with the Razorback team during the past season. Backing Ford and the entire team, cheerleaders Wirtz and Crockett did their share toward speeding the team on the way to victory.

Achievements which deserve praise are the following pinnings: Harry Thomas to Jimmie Lou Williams, Tri Delt; Charles Crockett to Eugenia Hosford, Chi Omega; and Jim McCall to Jewell Ann Price, Tri Delt.

The annual Sigma Nu Sadie Hawkins dance had to be postponed until after the war. This was sad news for the rest of the campus, for it was always one of the gayest parties given on the campus, its informality being a welcome change.

Well known Sigma Nu is Nathan Gordon, former Arkansas student, who has distinguished himself by meritorious action for the U. S. Navy.

Official publications of Sigma Nu are the Delt, quarterly periodical, the Sigma Nu Song Book, and The Story of Sigma Nu, a history of the fraternity.

THETA TAU

Upsilon Chapter

Theta Tau was born at the University of Minnesota on October 15, 1904, and was first known as "Hammer and Tongs." In 1911, the Greek name by which it is now known was adopted as the official title of this fraternity.

Upsilon chapter was established on the Arkansas campus in 1928, and since that date it has increased greatly in size, moved into its own house, and has been active in affairs of the Engine school, as well as affairs of the University as a whole.

A national professional engineering fraternity, Theta Tau was founded to promote high professional standards and to foster close fraternal relations among its members. It is the largest fraternity of its kind in the United States.

Members of Theta Tau are not permitted to join other engineering fraternities, but may join honorary or scholastic organizations.

Membership is limited to engineering students of "personal worthiness and of promising engineering ability." Theta Tau's scholastic standards are high, although it is not an honorary and there is no expressed grade point requirement for membership. A prospective member must have an above average grade point.

Since scholarship is stressed, this is perhaps the reason for Theta Tau's high place in scholarship on the campus for the past few years.

The annual Founders' Day banquet was held at the Mountain Inn this year, with Jimmy Brown presiding. Spring activities included an open house for all engineers and their dates on Engineer's Day, followed by a beer bust in the Theta Tau basement for men only.

Active participants in intramurals, the Theta Taus went all out for sports this year, winning the volleyball tournament and placing high in the other contests.

Mother Kate, former Alpha Gamma Rho house mother, has been with the boys for three years. Theta Taus contend that this gives the Engineers an edge over the Agris, since it took such a short time to convert Mother Kate from an Agri to an Engineer.

Theta Tau claims four members in O. D. K., one in Blue Key, two in Phi Eta Sigma, and two in Tau Beta Pi.

Theta Taus felt a loss when Jimmy Brown departed for the Navy this fall, for he was one of the most outstanding students in engineering, being elected to National Who's Who this fall.

New officers elected in the spring quarter are Jesse Pierce, president; Jack Berry, vice-president; Russell Newman, treasurer; and Marty Dyke, secretary.

Flower of this fraternity is the Jaqueminot rose, and the colors are dark red and old gold. Official publication of Theta Tau is the Gear.

Carnall Hall started the social season with an open house for all men on the campus, and carried the year through with several successful parties and dances. To these they added a lot of good grades and some dandy teams for all the tournaments, ending up with another successful year to their credit.

For their annual formal, they went all out patriotic on Washington's birthday. Even the man shortage on the campus didn't bother them because they made it vice-versa.

A Governing Board is selected by the Carnall girls to promote good will and friendship in the house; to guide in making decisions for the house; and to serve as a discipline committee to enforce the dormitory rules.

The biggest honor received by the girls this year was Wilma Douglas' being elected Traveler editor. It is their first time to have a girl in that position for several years.

President Sara Aldridge was winner of the Danforth award and of the Phi Upsilon Omicron award last year. Past President Alice Houston was Vice-President of the Student Body and a member of Mortar Board. Arlene Miller was Mortar Board and Phi Beta Kappa.

BAKER HOUSE

OFFICERS

LAMAR DINGLER	President

CLARENCE A. WILSON	Secretary-Treasurer
MORRIS A. VANDERBILT	Reporter

In the fall of 1943 an unaffiliated house was organized at 326 Rollston Avenue. This house subsequently became known as Baker House, and is owned and managed by Mrs. C. A. Baker, under the auspices of the University. "Stell," as Mrs. Baker is known, is a number-one favorite, and irreplaceable in the hearts of the seventeen-odd students who live there.

Baker House, aside from being the youngest organized house on the campus, is the most democratic. It offers a home to everyone. This year there are sixteen boys and one girl residing there.

Among these sixteen are six returned veterans. One, Frank Glasgow, a sophomore engineer from Texarkana, was in the Navy and stationed at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. He participated in the Aleutian Campaign, the Solomon Campaign, and served all over the Pacific area.

Robert Runyan, another veteran, was in the Marine Corps, and also saw action in the Solomons, Guadalcanal, and other battles in the Pacific Theater. The returned veterans include Morris Vanderbilt, who was attending Ordnance Officers Candidate School when he was discharged; Cecil Hutson, a Navy man; Clarence A. Wilson, who served in the Army Air Corps; and Olan Crow, a new resident of Baker House, who was in the Seabees. As it is plain to be seen all branches of the service are represented in the house on Rollston Avenue.

Peggy L. Linley is the only girl living at Baker House at present and she shares the affection of the boys with Mrs. Baker. Peggy is a freshman agri student from Webb City, Missouri.

Practically the whole football team lives at Baker. Lamar Dinger, Paul Anderson, Marvin Lindsey, Gordon Long, Melvin McGaha, and Billy Ray Thomas are the Razorback representatives. These boys are all members of the A Club. Long, of Monett, Missouri, was an outstanding player, who received considerable recognition for his passing. He left the university to join the Navy before the completion of the football season. Dinger was one of the most dependable men on the squad, in that he always played a good game. He was co-captain of the team during the 1943-44 season, and played end position. Incidentally he was a very capable president of the house this year.

Paul Anderson, a freshman from Neosho, Missouri, left school in March in preparation for entering Annapolis in June.

Gamma Iota is also well represented in the house. Morris Vanderbilt is a past president of the organization and the names of Jimmy Chambers and Cecil D. Hutson are to be found in the roll book. Morris is also one of the brains of the Opposition Party.

Baker House acquired another resident when Bill Collie married Barbara Hunt, Delta Gamma vice-president. The event took place early in April.

In intramurals Baker House took more than its share of honors. Raymond Hicks won first place in the boxing events, and the House, in conjunction with the Four-F House, placed first in basketball.

Marvin Lindsey, from Bauxite, is vice-president of the house. He is also a football letterman, and assistant intramural instructor, member of Y. M. C. A., and night instructor at the Boys' Club. This year he was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

DAVIS HALL

OFFICERS

MARGARET CHASTAIN	President
CARRIE LOU KINDER	Secretary
MARTHA TAYLOR	Treasurer
JEAN JOHNSON	House Manager

Mary Ann Davis Hall was completed in July, 1942, and was first used as a girls' coöperative house with the girls doing the housework and a Commissary Manager planning the meals. In March of 1943 the girls vacated the hall, leaving it to be used by the Army trainees on the campus, but in the fall of 1944 the hall was returned to the girls to be used as a dormitory.

The girls had to form their governing body with all new officers. Their President is Dorothy Bartlett, a junior transfer from Northeastern State College, and Mrs. Jean Johnson is serving as first house manager. Mary Beth Dorsey, a freshman, was selected as one of the Razorback beauties. Davis Hall house mother is Mrs. Glen Cornwell from Joplin, Missouri.

To open their social activities for the year, the girls held an open house in October, and on the 31st of that month, they had a Hallowe'en party. Following this they entertained at a formal dinner before they went home for the Christmas holidays, and at this same time they serenaded the boys' organized houses on the campus. Valentine's Day another formal dinner was held, and on March 10 they had a formal dance in the ballroom of the Union.

GIRL'S 4-H HOUSE

ALMERIA COX	Treasurer

The Girls' Four-H House has a unique history, since it was the first house of its kind organized in the United States, and the first coöperative house on the campus.

The girls are evidently good students for the average grade-point of the house is 2.31. They can also boast of having among their ranks a high-point freshman, Jean Chipman, and a Mortar Board member, Martha Lou Foreman Wood.

Mrs. Caswell MacRae, who is house mother, has held this position for six years. She is well loved by her girls, and has probably been on the campus longer than any other house mother, as this is her twenty-second year at Arkansas.

Romance hit hard at the Four-H House this year, with seven engagements and one marriage to their credit.

Outstanding social events of the year included a tea for the faculty during Homecoming, and the annual formal Christmas dinner.

Probably the most unusual celebration of the Yuletide season was the Pollyanna week celebrated before Christmas. The girls drew names for the "Pollys", and did a good deed for that person anonymously for a week. The benefactors were revealed by a gift at the Christmas dinner.

Serving as president of the house this year was Mary Linn, who is also treasurer of Coterie, past-treasurer of A. D. A., a member of Rootin' Rubes, Home Ec Club, and a Wesley Steward.

Open for the first time since the Army took over the campus two years ago, Razorback Hall this year has been the home of about seventy men. Outstanding in intramurals and "up there" in scholarship, the Razorback boys really got in and pitched when it came to politics.

Basketball and football stars for the dorm were James Chancellor, Carrol Jones, Harry Hargis, and James Smith. At the time this book went to press, softball season was just starting and the Razorback boys said, "Just wait 'til you see our softball team." From the looks of things, they're headed for the top in that field.

Two freshman boys from the dorm made a name for themselves when they rated Phi Eta Sigma. In case you don't know what an honor that is, it means they had a five point for their freshman year.

Even though it was their first year on the campus in some time, Razorback Hall fell right in line and had one social after another. First was a weiner roast in the Sig Alph valley early in the fall. After Christmas they had two "knock down and drag outs," which translated means skating parties.

The big event of the year was the "Brown Derby" dance, held in the Razorback cafeteria this spring.

Incidentally, the cafeteria was the place in which the Opposition Party formed its policies and decided who to run for what office.

Officers of the dorm elected in the spring were: Ed Marcum, president and house manager; Jack Marks, vice-president; Bennie Weil, secretary; and Wayne Medlin, Clarence Kropp, James Chancellor, James Smith, Henry De Salvo, and Fred Law, councilmen.

SCOTT HOUSE

OFFICERS

REBECCA B. ANDERSON President
 ALICE RUTH SIMS Secretary-Treasurer
 PEGGY FREE House Manager

Scott House, the blue and white colonial frame house on Storer Street, has been the home for the past year of twenty girls.

They have participated in their fair share of campus activities, having members in all campus clubs. Leona Jane Bledsoe was elected the first president of Chi Alpha, newly organized chemistry fraternity for girls, and is also secretary of the Rootin' Rubes. She and Elise Greig served as maids to "Miss Texas" and "Miss Rice" respectively.

The girls have kept up the high scholastic standing of the house by holding third place in the scholarship ranking for the winter quarter, and taking second place in the spring quarter.

The big event of the year was the marriage of Rosemary Roach to Staff Sergeant Dolph Florsheim on December 1, 1944, which took place at Scott House, and was followed by a reception.

"Becky" Anderson, a senior in the School of Education, served as house president this year with Peggy Free, a senior in Agri, as house manager.

A newly organized house on the campus this year is Oakland Hall. Last year the house was used for a girls' residence, but it was not completely organized until this year.

The Oakland Hall girls are particularly fond of their house mother, Mrs. Carroll Varner, who has given them her devoted attention and has added so much to the gaiety and success of the house.

One of the hall's most outstanding girls is its president, Myrtle McKinney, who has not only given her time to the house activities but also to all campus activities.

During Homecoming week-end two Oakland girls, Lanelle Ledbetter and Margaret Greig, were chosen by the football boys to be maids for "Miss Rice."

At the beginning of the school year, this group was hostess at an open house which was given for the Junior Birdmen. This event proved to be a huge success and since that first party many teas and informal affairs have been given.

THE 1945 RAZORBACK

In this, the 1945 RAZORBACK, we have done our best to give you, the students, an annual representative of student life. We have made a few changes in this year's book, due, in most instances, to wartime priority and lack of material.

The book has no theme this year, for we have attempted to break away from forms of preceding annuals on this campus. We believe that memories can be bound together without a continuity in structure.

We wish we could fully explain the feeling of accomplishment that is attained as the book evolves from dummy form to that of an organized publication. The title "Editor" means very little, when complex layouts, schedules, and contracts first appear. The enormity of the job is overpowering at first, but gradually problems are smoothed over, until now they seem never to have existed.

The business angle of the book, under the capable hands of Marjorie Embury, rapidly took shape. In fact, all the ads were sold and the proofs returned from the printers, even before Marjorie graduated in March.

In the middle of the Fall quarter, a catastrophe occurred . . . the RAZORBACK camera broke and remained at the factory for three months, giving Charlie a short vacation and the editor a slight headache. From then on it was hit-and-miss with borrowed cameras and camera men.

Today, the copy has all been written, the pictures have all been turned in, names have been checked for correct (we hope) spelling, and all possible mistakes have been caught, so that the Editor's life will not be at stake.

Wartime shortages have been the constant bane of this publication, and the reason for the smaller number of pages. We were lucky to be able to keep the book the same size, and to have a leather cover. To our knowledge, we are the only university in this part of the country to have a cover that is not made of khaki or canvas.

Thanks go to all loyal staff members, and especially to Mary Reichel, associate editor, and Ann Kelly, class editor, who did all the last minute detail work.

Thanks also to Mr. R. C. Walker and Mrs. Paul E. Yard of Southwestern Engraving Company, who always had a solution for impossible obstacles. Mr. Thalheimer and Mr. Bell did more than they'll ever know to encourage the publication of this year's annual. For their patience and understanding we are more than grateful.

So now, when the job is finally completed, we present to you your 1945 RAZORBACK. Whether or not this book is a success, only the readers can say.

THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER

Despite the war and shortage of journalism students, the Arkansas Traveler, under the leadership of Editor-in-Chief Lynnette Wilson, managed to have a very good staff which even went so far as to include members of the rarer sex—men!

Following Business Manager I. E. Moore's courageous entrance into the war-time feminine sanctity of the Traveler office, more men followed his example, with the result that at the end of the quarter, the Traveler boasted eight men on its staff.

Some new innovations instituted by Editor Wilson included a new system of filing in the office, both for cuts and for the editions of the paper; sending the editions of the paper to all high schools in the state; and a new name plate to take the place of the venerable time-worn one of previous years. During the school year, several new columns appeared in the Traveler. "Travelin' on G. I. Time," which proved very popular, gave the news of former students now in the armed forces. "Vignettes" was the new style column. For the Personality Parade, written by feature editor Wertheim, an outstanding student was interviewed each week.

During the year the Traveler and its ever-ready staff undertook several big campaigns. The first one was concerned with the music students' fight and the Traveler's endorsement to retain Mrs.

Esther Garlinhouse as a professor in the music school. This campaign turned out to be a very successful one. And then there was the "Student for Fulbright" movement which, at the instigation of the Traveler, went over with a bang.

In the early Spring, the Traveler conducted a poll in order to obtain the consensus of student opinion regarding whether their preference be for the quarter or semester system. Though the older students who had been to school under the semester system voted in the majority for it, they were out-voted by the new students who preferred the quarter system.

Later in the year, the staff, working in conjunction with Jack Berry and Jim Sloan, went all out in the campaign for a Valentine Dance to be held on Valentine's night—objections arose because of the rule prohibiting social functions on a school night. On Wednesday morning the campus was covered with "The Yellow Sheet," and broken and bleeding hearts were painted on the sidewalks of the campus—this campaign too ended successfully. We had our dance!

In spite of the paper shortage, the Traveler put out the regular extra editions, including the Honors Day paper, the April Fool Edition, the Commerce Day paper, and the editions for Agri Day and Engine Day.

THE AGRICULTURIST

The Agriculturist, official publication of the College of Agriculture, came of age this year as March marked the twenty-first anniversary of its founding. For the past few years, the copy has been pounded out in Room 208 on "Publications Row" in the union.

Run entirely by feminine agris this year, the editorial side of the magazine was headed by Martha Lou Foreman until she graduated in December. Then Betty Teeter took over for the rest of the year, figuring that she could spare the time away from Sloan. Faithful Betty Jo Oglesby served as business manager for the entire year.

The May issue was put out by the new staff chosen for next year, Lugene Davenport as editor and Jimmy Chambers as business manager.

The Agriculturist comes out twice a quarter, publishing articles and feature material of interest and help to agri and home ec students. Each issue contains about twenty pages, which includes reports on clubs in the College of Agriculture. Dean W. R. Horlacher writes an open letter for each issue on some timely subject that is applicable to the agri students.

Most thoroughly read page in the magazine is Grunts and Squeals, joke page, where all the chuckles currently circulating around the Agri College are concentrated.

A new column, News and Views, was started this year to give a summary of the news in the agri and home ec buildings.

Betty Lamp, strictly a woman's page, was written this year by Shirley Hawthorne. This page gives short items of interest to home ec students, and contains news about the Home Ec Club.

Three outstanding articles published in the Agriculturist this year were "Postwar Farm Machines" by Jack Keeling, "American Home 1945" by Eve Adams, and "Don't Fence Me In" by Mannon Gallegley.

Biggest issue of the year was the Agri Day edition, printed in the traditional bright pink dear to every AU farmer. This issue was devoted to pages about organizations in the Agri College and Agri Day activities. It also contained pictures of the queen of the College of Agriculture and of those chosen for Who's Who in the College of Agriculture, highest scholastic and leadership honor for an agri student.

The publication is financed by both national and local ads solicited by the business manager, and by a proportion of ADA dues which are turned over to the Agriculturist.

THE GUILD TICKER

The Guild Ticker, official magazine of the College of Business Administration, was formerly published semi-annually, but this year it bowed to wartime restrictions and had only one edition.

Editor Sara Ann Grayston tackled her job and the O. W. I. and put out a Ticker well worth reading by all those interested in the war and post-war business conditions in Arkansas. She was aided by Ann Dukeminier, Virginia Anderson, Virginia Shamel, and a staff composed of outstanding business students.

Guilford Webb, business manager, at first found Arkansas businessmen a little reluctant toward buying advertising space in the Ticker, but after his energetic staff began its thorough canvass of the state, the ball started rolling and the coöperation they received was overwhelming. As a result of their labor more ads were sold than for any previous Ticker.

On May 5, Commerce Day, along with those famed white dollar signs and the Commerce Queen, came the 1945 Guild Ticker to be distributed to all commerce students as well as businessmen all over the state. This year's Ticker was dedicated to twenty-eight former students of the University of Arkansas who have been killed in the service of their country.

Jesse Warren contributed an article on "Arkansas and the Future." Jesse has a personal interest in this subject concerning provisions for veterans of World War II under the G. I. Bill of Rights, as he is a veteran finishing his Business degree under this bill. Doris Cook was the little Trojan who undertook the task of discussing the statistical side of the cost of living index, comparing Arkansas with the United States as a whole.

Helen White wrote of the changes in the Arkansas Insurance Tax. Mary Ellen Cook was to have written on "War Production in Arkansas," but the Office of War Information deemed her material a military secret, so that article was scrapped. An article of the International Business Machine as a feature of the University was written by Betty Gary and Lou Alice Wright.

Ann Dukeminier, Lou Alice Wright, Virginia Shamel, and James Sloan were elected to Who's Who in the College of Business Administration and received just recognition in the Ticker, as did Virginia Anderson, Pi Phi, who was chosen Commerce Queen late in the spring.

A CLUB

The A Club is made up of the "cream of the crop" in the field of athletics. Its membership is limited to those who have won a varsity letter in any major sport—and to win a Varsity "A" is the highest athletic honor that can be bestowed by the University.

J. C. Futrall, former president of the University, was one of the founders of the club. In 1922 when it was organized, the club had only a few members. This year thirty-seven members firmly believe that "athletics are a necessary part of college life, that they contribute to welding the student body together, and that athletic contests are a big factor in the production of school spirit and loyalty."

The athletic department is keeping in touch with all of the former A Club members by a news-letter which is sent out at frequent intervals.

The A Club dance, held every spring, is one of the highlights of the social affairs on the campus. This year, as always, it was an evening of joy for members, old and new, and their dates.

Ben Jones, who was active in the club all year, was head of the receiving line at the dance. He has been elected president for the year of 1945-1946.

George Kok won national recognition by placing eleventh in the nation's scorers in basketball and seventh among the leaders in points made per game.

Mrs. Goldie Jones, an honorary member, is secretary and treasurer of the club, and is the only woman member in a "club for real he-men."

Two former A Club members, Maurice "Footsie" Britt and Nathan Gordon, have won the Congressional Medal of Honor. The club is infinitely proud of them and all of their members in the service.

HENDRIX LACKEY, JR.	W. R. WYNN

The main function of the Arkansas Boosters Club at the University is the building of school spirit at the athletic contests held on the campus. The boys in red and white did a magnificent job in bringing up pep at the football games this season and gaining Arkansas a reputation as one of the "best sports" of the conference. A crowning of their efforts was the very high spirit and enthusiasm exhibited by the students at the Homecoming game. The club sponsors the homecoming festivities, including the parade, prizes for the best decorations of house and float, and the Homecoming Queen's ceremony at the half.

Membership in ABC comes after a period of fancy dress in "RED" and "WHITE", egg throwing, and paddle "totin'," culminated by eating their final pledge dinner at the various sorority houses and a hilarious exhibition at the half of the first football game, when pride is forgotten and the mock initiation is carried on to the delight of the attending crowd.

When the Razorbacks have a home game, the ABC members place posters and slogans around the campus, display placards in the stands, and help the cheerleaders make the cheers loud and strong. Even though it be before daybreak and to the amazement of all bystanders at the station, the club teams with its sister organization, the Rootin' Rubes, gives the boys a victory-inspiring going-away cheer when the team leaves for a game at another town.

Dr. W. S. Gregson, the permanent secretary of the club, is a loyal supporter.

The Arkansas Boosters Club was founded on the Arkansas campus in 1919. Honorary memberships have been given to many great boosters of Arkansas.

ALPHA CHI SIGMA

Alpha Chi Sigma is a professional chemistry fraternity, the purpose of which is to render all possible assistance to its members in the furthering of their ambitions both as students and as chemists of the world of tomorrow.

Before they can qualify for membership in Alpha Chi Sigma, students must be in the latter half of sophomore chemistry or farther. The personality of the prospective member is given serious consideration, and a good scholastic record is necessary for admittance into the fraternity.

The local chapter was organized in the year 1928 by Dr. L. E. Porter, Dean A. S. Humphreys, and Dr. Edgar Wertheim.

Two annual laboratory banquets are presented for the members. One of these, the Founders' Day banquet, is formal, and features an address by some guest who has made an outstanding contribution in the field of chemistry.

Members of Alpha Chi Sigma meet at least once each month in the chemistry building. These meetings serve to provide close coöperative association with the chemistry faculty, all of whom are themselves members of the fraternity.

Every year an examination is given to those chemistry freshmen who desire to take it, and a handbook is presented as a prize to the student who receives the highest grade. Also as a yearly project, Alpha Chi Sigmas sponsor a free tutoring service for chemistry students.

A third custom of the fraternity is to grant an award of membership in the American Chemical Society to the senior student who has proved most promising in chemistry or in chemical engineering.

Alpha Chi Sigma has done a great deal in keeping before its members the example of perseverance, and in helping them to achieve success.

Agri Day Association, known by all students on the campus as ADA, has sponsored the annual celebration of students of the College of Agriculture for thirty years.

This group plans all social functions for the students of agriculture, but the main activity of the association is Agri Day, set aside this year as April 27.

ADA was first organized for the purpose of giving the College of Agriculture some publicity, for the uniting of the students more completely, and for a "bigger and better" celebration of Agri Day. Fees are paid as a part of registration, and all students of the college are entitled to participate in the activities.

Each year the future farmers and their gals declare a holiday and paint white feet all over the campus, as a reminder to the rest of the campus, and especially to the Engineers, that Agriculture is here to stay. This special day was first called the "Harvest Festival," but in 1920 the name was changed to Agri Day, and it has been known by that name ever since.

Agri Day has since become an occasion for the homecoming of all Agri alumni, and the motto of the day is "one for all and all for Agri."

Early in the morning on April 27, the Agri Day issue of the Agriculturist made its first appearance. This year's cover was bright pink, with a bare foot (the Agri symbol) drawn on it. On the toes of the foot were printed the names of the managers of ADA.

The festivities began with a convocation in the Union ball room, at which L. C. Carter spoke. He is a graduate of the University, being a former Agri student and member of ADA. At present, he is manager of the Arkansas Rice Growers Co-op Association.

Following the address by Mr. Carter, Mildred Riggs was crowned Agri Queen, one of the highest honors that can come to any Home Ec girl. The royal throne was a wagon wheel replica against a backdrop displaying the Agri feet. The queen wore the traditional white gown and red robe, and was crowned by Dean Horlacher, of the College of Agriculture.

Agri Queen represents the most popular girl in the College of Agriculture, since it is a fair and square election with campus politics having no part. Mildred is a senior in Home Ec, and lives at the Four-H House.

Most eagerly awaited news is that of Who's Who in the College of Agriculture, and this enticing information is always saved until the last minute. In past years it was the custom to have four boys and four girls as members, but the ADA constitution merely states that it shall be composed of outstanding senior students.

Since the enrollment of boys in the college has dropped considerably in the past few years, only two boys were selected this year along with four girls. These were Mannon Gallegly, president of Wesley Players and former ADA manager; Richard Kendrick, this year's manager of ADA; Mary Helen Moore, president of Chi Omega and vice-president of Phi Upsilon Omicron; Alice Houston, past president of Carnall Hall and an active member of the Home Ec club and Phi Upsilon Omicron; Helen Louise King, president of Coterie and Phi Upsilon Omicron; and Betty Teeter, president of the Home Ec club. From the list of honors by the name of each of these students, it is easy to see why they were the selected and privileged few.

Also announced at the convocation was the winner of the University Senior Scholarship Key, which went this year to Mary Jo McBride.

Immediately following the convocation, a picnic was held at the University Farm, with games and entertainment for everyone. Faculty and students alike attended this affair, and all claimed it was the "best yet."

The Annual Agri Formal was held in the Union ballroom that night, and the traditional gingham dresses and overalls were once more donned. Formerly a closed dance, this year the doors were open to all students on the campus, and a new twist was added by making the dance vice-versa.

The faculty members of the College of Agriculture are members of ADA, and are invited to all of its activities. At the ADA meetings, members of the faculty often address the students on various topics pertaining to Home Ec or Agriculture.

Committee chairmen for this year's Agri Day were Melvin Tucker, Mildred Cash, Frances Harrison, Mannon Gallegly, and Helen Louise King.

Past Agri Days have featured such things as carnivals, parades, and Agri Balls, but in recent years these have been eliminated.

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA

Alpha Epsilon Delta is the honorary Pre-Medical fraternity on the campus under the capable leadership of Kappa Kappa Gamma's Peggy Kerr, with Dr. Samuel C. Dellinger, professor of Zoology, as advisor.

AED is a national organization having many chapters in the country in outstanding schools. Arkansas's Alpha chapter was organized January 8, 1938.

Requirements for membership are that each member take a pre-med course and have an accumulative grade point of a three point, with a four point average in pre-medical work.

The meetings are held every Thursday afternoon at five p. m. in the Chemistry building. These meetings are to promote open discussions and addresses on medical problems and medical research. Discussions are further carried on at the dinners held once a month at the Washington Hotel with two members giving "papers" in regard to medicine and the future work of medical affairs.

The fraternity tries in every possible way to help local conditions and assist in any campus problems arising which pertain to health or medicine. This year AED has backed several nationwide campaigns on health here on the campus.

This fall Dean Byron T. Robinson of the University of Arkansas Medical School in Little Rock, was initiated as an honorary member of this group. Other honorary members having already been initiated here on this campus are: Dr. Delbert Swartz, professor of Botany and Bacteriology, and Dr. Harrison Hale, head of the Chemistry department.

The last social function of AED for this year was a picnic which was thoroughly enjoyed by all members.

AICHE

The student branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers is a professional organization for Chemical Engineers. Its purpose is to acquaint its members with other Chemical Engineers on similar ideals and ambitions. It affords a chance to learn interesting and helpful information about other subjects.

AICHE has chapters in all the leading engineering colleges of the country and the local branch was founded in 1935 by Dr. Harrison Hale. It is the largest and most influential engineering organization on the campus, and the only requirement for membership is enrollment as a chemical engineer.

AICHE has carried out a two-fold program this year in the way of social and educational entertainment. Meetings are held twice a month, and members are treated to talks, motion pictures, and socials throughout the year. Prominent speakers give seminar talks, and these are supplemented by films and general discussion of technical nature. The most outstanding talk and discussion was on penicillin. Smokers are held frequently in the Student Union at which papers and talks are given. A smoker was held this year in honor of Dr. Hale and Mr. Heim. Mr. Heim is a new instructor on the chemical engineering staff and AICHE elected him as one of their faculty advisors. Dr. Hale is also an advisor.

Each year the organization awards a pin to the junior chemical engineer who attains the highest scholastic standing.

Clarence Dees, a senior and Fayetteville boy, was elected president. The most outstanding member is Dan Whelchel of West Helena. He is also a member of Theta Tau, Pi Mu Epsilon, I. R. E., and Engineering Council.

The Baptist Student Union is the connecting link between the U of A college campus and the local Baptist Church, unifying all the voluntary religious activity of Baptist students on the local campus, and of Baptist students throughout the south. Any student who is a member of the local Baptist church or other unit organization represented on the B. S. U. Council is a member of the Union.

The group on the U of A campus claims membership in the state and Southwide Student Unions, with Alvis L. Malone, junior engineering student, holding the office this year of state B. S. U. president. Most important Southwide event is the annual Southwide Baptist Student Retreat at Ridgecrest, North Carolina.

The B. S. U. strives to meet the spiritual needs of the students by promoting Join the Church Day the first Sunday following the students' arrival on the campus. Supplementing the Sunday church worship and other spiritual activities, they sponsor Morning Watch in the Student Union every week Monday through Friday mornings from 7:30 to 7:50.

High on the calendar of social events is the annual reception held at the beginning of each quarter for all new students. Also popular with the students are their "fellowship hours" following the Sunday evening services, when the students are invited into local Baptist homes.

Constantly promoting the work of the Union is Miss Mary Jane Redwine, student secretary in the employment of the local Baptist Church.

Official organ of this organization is The Ambassador, published bi-weekly and distributed to all Baptist students at Sunday school on Sunday mornings.

BLUE KEY

Blue Key, national honor fraternity, has as its purposes co-operation with the faculty, study of student problems, and stimulation of progress and promotion of the interests of the institutions where it has chapters.

Chief requirement necessary for membership in Blue Key is that stressed by the Rhodes Scholarship: "Some definite quality of distinction, whether in intellect, character, or personality, or any combination of these." The grade point of a Blue Key member must be higher than that of the average college man, since Blue Key recognizes only those who are tops in their classes.

Because of present war conditions, the rule that a student had to be in his junior year before he could become a member of the fraternity, has been changed to make sophomores eligible for membership.

Blue Key was founded at the University of Florida in 1924, and was established as a national organization one year later. Dean John Clark Jordan, of the Graduate School, founded the Arkansas chapter in 1924, which existed as The Marble Arch until it joined the national group in 1929. When Blue Key first became national, Dean Jordan was elected national president, and he has been re-elected at each succeeding convention.

Jack West, president of this year's chapter, is a third year law student and a member of SAE. He has been the leader in many campus drives for Red Cross donations and War Relief Activities. Blue Key claims three campus presidents: Jim Sloan, secretary of the august body, president of Sigma Chi and of the Senior class; Jimmy Wirtz, president of Sigma Nu; and Ed McBryde, president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

BOOTS AND SPUR

Organized in 1938 on this campus, Boots and Spur's purpose is to create interest and increase skill of students in horseback riding. Requirements for membership include a genuine interest in horsemanship and the ability to ride well enough to win the approval of the club sponsor and a majority of the members.

Sponsored by Mrs. Joy Pratt Markham, the club holds regular meetings every other Wednesday night at seven o'clock in the Blue Room of the Student Union. Mrs. Markham gives lectures on the fundamentals of riding and the different types of horses. At various times, guest speakers visit the meetings.

Mrs. M. J. Lindloff spoke to members of Boots and Spur on "Arabian Horses." Mrs. Lindloff, owner of an Arabian horse, is an ardent horsewoman. Her address was illustrated with amusing anecdotes from her own experiences.

Newly elected president is Mary Vivian Terry, Delta Delta Delta. With her will serve Esther Lange as vice president; Helen DeLamar, secretary; and Helen Cecil, treasurer.

Besides the regularly-elected officers, a special representative from every organized woman's house was appointed—her duty being to encourage riding, collect dues, and watch for new prospective members.

Activities of the club this year included participation in the Homecoming Day Parade, rides to Lake Wedington, Tontitown, and a visit to Mr. Gene Goff's farm to see his champion horses. Many of the members are active in the Fayetteville Riding Club.

For several years Boots and Spur has been trying to obtain a riding ring and a regular stable. This year they have secured the Board of Trustees' promise that they shall have the ring and stable by summer if it is at all possible. With the aid of this ring the enthusiastic members of Boots and Spur will learn more about taking horses through all their paces and jumping hurdles. They are also making plans for the shows they will be able to present.

Colors of the club are sky-blue and scarlet. Blue is for their ideals; scarlet for the energy to put these ideals into effect. As sister organization to Saddle and Bridle, the girls are looking forward to when it can become active.

Dr. Hale's Bible Class drew largest attendance in years.

CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN

From the days of the first meetings of the University Men's Bible Class twenty-seven years ago, until now, the organization has shown an ever increasing enrollment. Its present membership places it among the largest Sunday school classes in the state.

Lately it has been necessary to co-ordinate the efforts of the Men's Class with the University Women's Bible Class. The joint meetings are held at the Central Presbyterian Church, and each class maintains a separate organization.

Emphasis in the group is placed on regular attendance. Each year, a plaque is given to the organization having the most students at the class for any one Sunday. Points are given to each member on the basis of his consecutive attendance. The five point men are those attending five consecutive Sundays, the goal of every member.

Dr. Harrison Hale, head of the Chemistry department at the University, has been the leader of the University Men's Bible Class since 1918 when he helped organize it. Since then students have been flocking to hear his excellent addresses.

Associate teachers now in the service, who attended Bible class meetings are Major Davis P. Richardson, former campus physician; Navy Lt. George R. Cole, professor in the college of Business Administration; and Corporal Joe Covington, of the Law school faculty. Former student members may be found scattered in all parts of the world, while some have to be represented by gold stars.

The motto of the class is, "I can do all things through Christ who endynamites me."

CHEER LEADERS

They yelled lustily, they jumped high, they turned super handsprings . . . the cheerleaders did everything in their power to keep the team winning and the student body yelling.

At the beginning of the season they numbered seventeen, making them the largest group of cheerleaders in several years. By the close of the season, four of the eight men Hog-callers—Charles Crockett, Benson Hart, Jim White, and Pat Martin had gone into the service.

The game that went down as THE game in every cheerleader's diary was the Homecoming game. This year was the first time in several years that the Razorbacks won their homecoming tussle and the cheerleaders went all out in their appreciation.

After the game, the Junior Birdmen triumphantly carried the team from the field on their shoulders. Next week the Traveler proclaimed, "Orchids to the Junior Birdmen who carried the victorious team off the field Saturday. It's the first time this has happened at Arkansas for many years. Might give a few of the other students a lesson in school spirit."

Jean Pitcock, was head cheerleader of the 1945 squad. Jean was a cheerleader in 1943, and was head cheerleader last year.

At several games, Sonny Woodson jitterbugged with different feminine members of the squad, much to the delight of the crowd. Apparently the ROTC band music made his feet itch.

Unlike the crowd, the squad was out yelling, rain or shine . . . prepared to swelter, freeze, or be drenched.

The cheerleaders are elected by members of the ABC club and the Rootin' Rubes. Dr. Gregson is their advisor.

The Commerce Guild is an organization composed of all students enrolled in the College of Business Administration. Membership is voluntary and any student in the Business School is eligible. The purpose of the Guild is to superintend various social and educational activities of the college, and specifically, to select the editor of the Guild Ticker, annual Business School magazine.

The Guild does not hold regular meetings, but only annually for the election of officers. The officers who compose the executive board select the editor of the Ticker from candidates chosen from the Business School. The board also makes suggestions for the staff, but the final choice is in the hands of the editor. This year Sara Ann Grayston, Delta Delta Delta, was editor, and Guilford Webb business manager. The paper goes to all members and to a number of business firms in the state.

One of the major responsibilities of the Guild is to plan Commerce Day, an annual affair of the Business School. This year the festivities began with a convocation at which Mr. H. J. Geiger, Division Sales Manager of Standard Oil of New Jersey, was the principal speaker. At the dance that night, the Commerce Queen was announced. The Queen is elected from a group composed of representatives of each house, and this year's choice was Virginia Anderson, Pi Phi.

Ed McBryde, who is president of the Guild, is also president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, a member of Blue Key, and leader of the dance band.

Virginia Anderson, vice-president, is a member of YWCA, Phi Chi Alpha, and Pi Beta Phi.

COTERIE

Coterie has now passed its sixth successful year as "the" organization for outstanding independent women on the campus. This strictly social group is made up of girls from the various independent houses and girls who live off the campus.

The organization originally was for town girls only; but now, although the membership is restricted to thirty, towns all over the state and even out of the state are represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Julien R. Tatum sponsored the organization again this year, and opened their home to the girls for their formal initiation and for several parties.

Although the man shortage caused them to decide not to have their annual Valentine formal this year, Coterie girls turned the tables on that evil and had a "half and half" party to take its place. They drew to see which half would be boys and which would be girls. Then the lucky half (or should we say unlucky?) called the girls for dates and entertained them for a dinner and theatre party—dressing, talking, and acting like the perfect male escorts.

A "come as you are party" found the girls dressed in all combinations and for many occasions. A spaghetti supper held at the home of Carlyn Clark and fall dance in the game room of the student union were other successful social events they had last year.

The Installation banquet was held in the Blue Mill dining room late in the spring.

Coterie had three Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and three Mortar Board members this year. In the last two years they have had three winners of the Danforth award, which goes to the outstanding freshman and junior in Home Economics.

Coterie meets every Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Women's lounge of the Student Union.

The Engineering Council, which is the Student Senate for the College of Engineering, has as its chief purpose the planning of activities for the Engineering College and chief among these is the annual Engineer's Day.

The twelve-man council is composed of two representatives from each Engineering society, the Engineering representative to the Student Senate, one member from the freshman class, one member from the sophomore class, and one delegate from the college at large.

The Engineers, who are naturally serious-minded fellows, forgot all slide rules when time came for their annual Engineer Day. Festivities began on March 1 with a banquet at the Washington Hotel.

John Ragsdale, Jr. was announced as St. Patrick and Connie Raymond, Davis Hall, was acclaimed the Engineer's dream girl, St. Patricia. Bob Price, the engineer with the longest and thickest beard, received a kiss from the queen as his well-earned reward. Following the quiz show, the Engineers painted the campus and town green with shamrocks, raised their shamrock banners above most of the buildings on the campus, and sang below sorority windows.

On March 2, official Engineer's Day, the men emerged from behind their beards. St. Patrick John Ragsdale and Queen Connie Raymond led the procession of graduating seniors to the convocation in the Main Auditorium at ten o'clock. Following the traditional rites of the Engineers, each senior was knighted by St. Patrick and kissed the Blarney Stone.

The annual Engineers Ball held in the ballroom of the Student Union ended the celebration. St. Patricia was crowned at the ball and, with St. Patrick, led the knights of St. Patrick and their dates in the grand march.

ENGINEERING SEMINAR

In keeping with a policy of coöperation among the various branches of engineering, the local student branches of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and American Society of Mechanical Engineers began this year the practice of holding joint seminars in the Engineering Building. At these seminars, held every two weeks, papers are given on technical subjects, each member being required to give one paper a year.

Once during each quarter the Seminar holds a smoker in the Blue Room of the Student Union. The usual program at these smokers is a speech by some faculty member followed by a general discussion, serving of chocolate and doughnuts, and saturation of the air with cigar smoke. The speaker for the fall quarter smoker was Dr. Nichols of the mathematics department, and for the winter quarter Dean Stocker.

Each member of the Engineering Seminar receives monthly a copy of the technical magazine published by his particular society. These magazines contain articles on the latest developments in the engineering field, news of the parent organizations, and news of other student chapters.

The mechanical and civil engineering groups admit only men of at least junior standing while the electricals allow sophomore students also to membership. In all three groups juniors and seniors are required to join and receive scholastic credit for their membership. The electrical engineers, in the preparation of their papers, are required to spend three hours a week a quarter in research laboratory.

Upon graduation the members of Engineering Seminar are eligible for membership in the respective parent organizations.

To foster serious Bible study, to encourage individual devotional life, and to promote the regular attendance of Southern Presbyterian students at morning worship, are the aims of the university Sunday school class of the First Presbyterian church.

This class is composed entirely of university students. Mr. and Mrs. Van Howell have been its popular teachers for the past twelve years, alternating in presenting the lesson each Sunday.

The class helps to train students for future leadership in their denomination and promotes inter-denomination Christian life on the campus. It carries on service projects in the church and at the end of each school year individual certificates are given for perfect and excellent attendance.

The class sponsored an attendance contest which helped to create much interest and enthusiasm. The entire class was divided into two groups, the Reds and the Blues, and the contest was run on an accumulative point system. The side with the highest point at the end of the contest was entertained by the losing side.

The students also have a Fellowship group which meets every Sunday night at six for supper and discusses topics of its councilman's choosing. Dr. and Mrs. Harold Hoffsommer are the adult advisors for this group. Mrs. Claude Whitlock and Miss Virginia Smith act as student secretaries for the group.

Last fall twelve students of the class represented the church at the State Fellowship meet held in Conway, Arkansas. At this meeting Margaret Gerig was elected president of the State Westminster Fellowship.

KAPPA DELTA PI

The instructors of the youth of tomorrow make up Kappa Delta Pi, the national honorary educational fraternity. Kappa Delta Pi was founded at the University of Illinois in 1911. Its purpose is to encourage intellectual and scholastic standards among students in education, and it also serves to acquaint its members and pledges with the people famous in the world of education by recognizing the year's outstanding contributions to the field.

The fraternity was organized on the University of Arkansas campus in 1924. In that year Kappa Delta Pi granted a charter to the Education Club officially affiliating its members with the national fraternity.

The student desiring membership must have a cumulative grade point of four, junior or senior standing, and a specified number of hours in the College of Education. The student must also have outstanding personal qualifications.

Kappa Delta Pi strives to improve the scholarship of all in the College of Education by recognizing outstanding students. Each year the fraternity presents a scholarship award to the highest ranking junior in the College of Education.

Twice each year initiation banquets are held. These are always entertaining because the programs are provided by the pledges about to be initiated. Often these programs turn out to be "take-offs" on members of the faculty of the College of Education.

Kappa Delta Pi meets on the third Tuesday of each month at seven-thirty at the Student Union. The programs are based on topics of interest to the educational world; past, present, and future. They feature forums and discussions or guest speakers.

Gamma Iota is the outgrowth of a small group of World War II veterans who have seen action in every branch of the service. These boys who are attending the University of Arkansas were called together in an informal meeting March 20, 1944, just to get acquainted.

At the meeting the boys decided to form a club called the "University of Arkansas Veterans Club." As this club grew and continued to progress properly, gaining new members every quarter, it was decided to change the organization to some sort of fraternal order.

The name Gamma Iota was adopted to immortalize the term "Government Issue," which is so familiar to all service men.

The initial officers of this new fraternity were Morris Vanderbilt, president; Clarence Leonard, vice-president; Jack Holt, secretary; Kenneth Beaton, treasurer; Jack Berry, chaplain; and Pete Oliver, reporter.

Because of a picture of the officers of this fraternity, published in the May issue of the National Legionnaire, an American Legion publication, much interest was created throughout the nation. Inquiries were received from veterans attending some twenty colleges of the United States. Immediately Gamma Iota laid plans for becoming national in scope.

October 17, 1944, Gamma Iota was duly incorporated and the certificate of incorporation was rendered by the Circuit Court of Washington County, Arkansas.

This chapter, the Alpha chapter, has designed an appropriate key and other necessary things for the function of such an organization.

Many of the boys in the Arkansas chapter are former students of the University of Arkansas, who were called into the service before having a chance to complete their education.

This chapter of Gamma Iota has ex-service men from the Army, Navy, and the Marines, and, strangely enough, they all get along well together.

Frank Glasgow, five year Navy man, was in three major battles, one of which was Pearl Harbor. He was also in the Aleutians, Kiska, New Georgia, and on Munda.

Russell Newman, who had been in service three years and eight months, was in the Pacific theater of operations with the anti-aircraft artillery.

John Wilson, infantryman for three years, was sent to Alaska, where he was put into the Ski Troops. John says their main battle was "General Weather."

Herbert Schulze was with Carlson's Raiders and saw action in the Solomon Islands.

Harry Thomas, who served two years in the Marine Corps, saw action in the Battle of Midway, Battle of Gaudalcanal, and Battle of Savo Island.

Charter members of Gamma Iota are: Havis Barnes, Kenneth Beaton, William Collie, Jack Holt, Cecil Hutson, Edmond Marcum, Dennis Massey, Pete Oliver, Clarence Wilson, Jack Berry, Morris Vanderbilt, Jesse Warren, and Clarence Leonard.

Membership into Gamma Iota is open to both men and women. The only prerequisite for membership is an honorable discharge from any branch of the military service after September 16, 1940.

HOME EC CLUB

The Home Ec club is the "tie that binds" in the Home Economics department. The club creates a close fellowship between the Home Economics girls, the faculty and the students, and also promotes discussions and study of the most effective means of household management and every other phase of Home Economics work.

This year approximately seventy girls met in the living room of the Home Economics building the third Wednesday of each month. Miss Helen Cannon, assistant professor of Home Economics, was their sponsor. Every girl enrolled in Home Economics courses was eligible for membership.

The Valentine Party took the spotlight in the social life of the club. Large committees were appointed to take care of decorations, refreshments, and entertainment—and the girls were really proud of the result.

Complicated red and white decorations transformed the living room of the Home Economics building. The refreshment committee carried out the red and white color scheme in their menu. The entertainment committee presented a melodrama, "John's Other Wife's Sister-in-Law's Cousin," broadcast over station KORN. This feature had the Home Economics girls and their guests going around with an amused twinkle in their eyes several days after the party was a thing of the past.

In October, talks were given by the winners of the Danforth Scholarships. Shirley Hawthorne, who received the Freshman Danforth Scholarship, and Helen Louise King, winner of the Junior Danforth Scholarship, gave reports on their trips the preceding summer to the American Youth Foundation Camp, Camp Miniwanca, on Lake Michigan.

The outstanding educational activity of the year was the Home Economics Vocational Conference sponsored by the club in March. After attending the general Women's Vocational Conference, held under the sponsorship of AWS, the Home Economics girls decided that since there were so many varied divisions in their department they would profit by a vocational conference held exclusively within the Home Economics school.

In May, the new officers were installed at the annual installation banquet.

True to custom, the annual Christmas Tea was held, honoring all faculty wives, faculty women, and club mothers. Dr. Grace Henderson was special guest of honor.

Martha Lou Foreman, prominent member of the club, was the winner of the Hazel Briggs award, which is given annually to the junior woman in the College of Agriculture who is most outstanding in scholarship and journalism.

Members of this club know how to do many things which aid them after their graduation—for they know how to plan meals, take care of a house, care for children, and even manage a husband properly.

Alpha Delta chapter of Kappa Pi, national honorary art fraternity, was established on the University campus on May 24, 1941, as a successor to the Brush and Palette Club. Dr. Ralph M. Hudson was named as sponsor.

Selection of members is made each spring from art students who have shown ability in art and general scholarship. They are required to have a four point in all art courses, and a 2.5 accumulative.

The purpose of Kappa Pi, to promote the arts in American colleges and universities and to aid in the spread and development of art participation and appreciation in college communities, is in evidence on this campus. During the past year the group has donated prints for hospital rooms, several "actives" were absorbed in painting the historic murals in the Fountain room of the Union, and the University has on display some pieces done by members of Kappa Pi.

New officers elected after Christmas were Mary Ann Helstern, president; Mary Ellen Randolph, secretary; and Betty Hendrick, treasurer. In March came initiation with eight girls becoming actives and eight more formally pledged. Following the ceremony the group was entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Hudson at their home. The conversation turned from "charcoals" and "water-colors" to the Sketch Book of Kappa Pi, which is the handbook of the organization. It is the official publication released each spring.

During the year it was learned that Captain Beverly Hays, president of the charter group, was killed in France, January 23, 1945. Among the former members of Kappa Pi and the local club which preceded it, now serving in the armed forces are David Bing, Dolores Mullett, Preston Magruder, Jack Hobson, and Carl Rowden.

LAMBDA TAU

Lambda Tau, national women's English fraternity, is the aim of every girl interested in writing anything from lyric poetry to historical novels.

To be eligible for membership, the ladies of literature must show a marked literary ability and must make at least a four point average in English, with a three point accumulative in all other subjects.

The aim of Lambda Tau is to foster a greater interest in literary activities by association of girls who are definitely interested in literary work, by giving recognition to girls who have shown some literary ability, and to encourage further literary endeavor.

Founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1933, the group was installed on the University of Arkansas campus in 1913, due to efforts of Miss Jobelle Holcombe, professor of English.

Each spring an initiation banquet is held, at which each new member must present an original composition on any subject in which she has an interest. This is the affair looked forward to most of all by members of Lambda Tau, for the topics of these themes are various and sundry, and capture the interest of all who attend.

At their meetings, the girls discuss famous authors and their works, and receive many inspirational ideas as to the special field which they desire to enter. Famous books and poems are analyzed, so that the members of Lambda Tau may see what actually makes a book great.

A contest is held each year in some phase of writing, with prizes being offered to the winners.

The Arkansas chapter of Lambda Tau is the only remaining active chapter in the United States.

MET CLUB

Just beginning to make history on the University of Arkansas campus is the newly-organized "Met" club. This club was started in November, 1944, and has proved to be one of the most interesting and educational clubs on the campus.

The name "Met" was given to the club in memory of one of the University's most outstanding students, Mary Elizabeth Phillips, Tri-Delt, who was called "Met" by her many friends.

She was a social welfare major and, since the club primarily deals with social welfare problems, the sponsor of the organization, Mrs. Mattie Maxted, suggested the name "Met." Mary Elizabeth, whose home was in Ashdown, Arkansas, was killed about two and one-half years ago in an automobile accident.

The members of the club not only discuss social welfare work, but also any other social problems which might confront society. It is an undertaking to make the students more interested in social welfare work.

Several times during the year, Mrs. Maxted entertained the group with dinner at her home. At these informal gatherings members of the club told about some of their interesting experiences in social welfare work.

At one meeting tests were given by Dr. Davies to judge psychological factors. After the tests were given, Dr. Davies addressed the group on sociology.

Dora Dean Johnson, president of the YWCA and also a social welfare major, has spoken to the members about some of her experiences in this field.

The "Met" club, even though it has just been organized, is fast becoming one of the most active clubs on the university campus.

MORTAR BOARD

Being a member of Mortar Board is a feather in any college co-ed's cap, for it is an honorary organization for outstanding senior women. Mortar Board was established on the University of Arkansas campus on May 18, 1940, by Octagon, then a local honorary women's society.

The annual "tapping" of newly-elected girls takes place each year at the AWS spring festival. Members are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and service, and must maintain a three-point grade average.

The purpose of the group is to promote college loyalty, to advance the spirit of service and fellowship among University women, to provide co-operation between honor societies, to recognize and encourage leadership, to maintain a high standard of scholarship, and to stimulate and develop a finer type of college woman.

This year, as an outside activity, Mortar Board, together with ODK, Blue Key, and Alpha Lambda Delta, sponsored a series of lectures on post-war planning and problems of peace. The lectures were given by Dean Paul W. Milam, Dr. A. W. Giles, Dean Robert A. Leflar, and the Rev. John P. McConnell.

Mortar Board, each year, acts as an advisory committee for women transfer students, and joins with Sophomore Council in giving a party for all new women students at the beginning of the year.

The annual Towle Silver Survey, which is Mortar Board's way of making money, was more successful this year than ever before. This was largely credited to the fact so many of the senior girls are married and, consequently, were more interested in silverware.

Advisors for the organization were: Mrs. Bunn Bell, Mrs. Daisy Holcomb, and Mrs. A. L. Venable.

MIXED CHORUS

Boasting the largest enrollment of any organization on the campus, "Pop" Schultz's proteges again turned in a successful year of concerts and weekly practice sessions. Under the direction of genial "Pop", with a "B" for the sweet frosh trying to make sorority standards, this strictly non-honorary group of choralers met weekly for their vocalizing. Each Tuesday night found them at work in the Union Ballroom from seven 'til nine.

With a minimum scholastic requirement of a passing grade in ten hours of work for one quarter, the chorus enjoys a large attendance. President Brigham Young agreed with visitors who commented on the quality and skill of the chorus that it was "one of the best mixed choruses in the country." Although "Brigham" was one of the fifteen masculine members, by count, "Pop" managed to blend the voices into the classical, semi, and popular numbers taken on by the industrious vocalists.

The black and white attire of the members made a striking appearance before the large Ballroom mirror at the Christmas concert, and beaming sopranos, altos, tenors, and "Pop's" favorites, the lowly "basses", did themselves proud in showing off the results of their months of work. This sort of success makes even the most untalented singer reach for his tuning fork and copy of "Country Gardens" for a night at one of the pleasant rehearsals.

Not to be ignored are the appearance made before the Earl of Halifax during his March visit to the campus, and the crowning success of the spring concert, an important part of music week in May. Other entertaining done by the chorus included a little private affair, following tradition, where all thoughts of counter-harmony, dominant fifths and sevenths were forgotten for the night.

Beginning its tenth year of existence the chorus threatens to grow until it rivals the enrollment of the University.

"To deepen the spiritual and to enrich the temporal lives of its members through a balanced program of religious, intellectual, and social activities" is the stated purpose of the Newman Club. The Newman Club strives to reach all Catholic students on the campus in order to provide them with a fuller and richer religious life while they are in the University.

This group bears the name of Cardinal Newman, who was the acknowledged leader of the Roman Catholic Church in Europe for several years during the latter part of the nineteenth century. The organization strives to have its members bear in mind the ideals and principles of the famous theologian for the betterment of society as a whole.

The club is national in scope, having been founded late in the last century at the University of Pennsylvania. The chapter at the University of Arkansas was founded in 1937.

The Newman Club meets every first and third Sunday in each month in the basement of the Catholic Church. The meetings are held immediately following ten o'clock Mass in order to enable more students to attend. Problems of everyday life, both religious and secular, are advanced and current topics of interest to society as a whole are discussed as well as subjects of interest to the Catholic Church. At one meeting a heated argument was held on capital and labor.

Social affairs of the club included breakfasts served in the basement of the church once every month. The club has in previous years held Sunday night banquets, but these have been done away with for the duration of the war.

The Newman Club is proud to claim as its president Jim Sloan, one of the outstanding students on the campus.

ORCHESIS

If you have any latent ability you should join other terpsichorean artists in the fall when try-outs are held for Orchesis, women's dance group.

Upon receiving an invitation to membership, the newly pledged trek to the Women's Gymnasium where, under the direction of Miss Lesley Vinal, assistant professor of physical education for women, they begin studies in rhythm.

The first part of each Wednesday night is spent in limbering up exercises and in improving balance. The rest of the time is spent in composing, and those present are divided into groups in which they plan a dance on some one piece of music. The entire class selects the best and then continues to develop the composition; in this way ideas are contributed and discarded by all.

Active participation is necessary. Since there is only one class held a week, it is necessary to drop those with excessive absences, but those attending every meeting automatically gain admittance into the Women's Athletic Association. Since until this year previous experience was necessary, it is now the custom to extend invitations to students registered in physical education for modern dance, if recommended by the instructor after a quarter's training.

Every spring a demonstration is presented: studies and various approaches to rhythm, canon, resultant, sustained movement. Dances developed by the girls usually consist of one American folk theme or Mother Goose rhyme.

Orchesis was organized on the campus in 1937. Its purpose is to develop modern dance technique and to give its members an opportunity to compose as well as receive instructions on others' compositions.

Recognition of men who have attained a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities is the object of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary fraternity. ODK strives to inspire students to achieve conspicuous attainments along similar lines; to bring together the most representative men in all phases of collegiate life and thus create an organization which will help to mold the sentiment of the institution on questions of local and intercollegiate interest; and to bring together members of the faculty and student body of the university on a basis of mutual interest and understanding.

Beta Beta Circle of this national honorary for outstanding men was organized on the Arkansas campus June 2, 1939. Candidates are chosen for their eminence in five phases of campus life: scholarship, athletics, social and religious activities, publications, and forensic, dramatic, musical, or other cultural activities.

Members of ODK are senior men in the upper thirty-five percent, scholastically, of their class. Men who are eligible have a total of fifteen or twenty activity points in a system which counts RAZORBACK or Traveler editor only three.

Called meetings are held in Dean Humphrey's office. Dr. Harding gave a reception February 11 in honor of the new initiates, which was attended by all actives and faculty members.

Omicron Delta Kappa was founded at Washington and Lee University on December 3, 1914, and now has forty-six chapters scattered all over the United States. This group is also a member of the Association of College Honor Societies.

Three times this spring, ODK had joint meetings with Mortar Board and Blue Key to discuss problems of student morale and the effect of the war on the campus.

PHI ALPHA THETA

After a few years of inactivity, the Alpha chapter of Phi Alpha Theta was revived in 1941, and has since become one of the most vigorous societies in school. It was founded in 1921 on the University of Arkansas campus as an historical honorary fraternity, and soon became national.

Phi Alpha Theta is definitely a society for the intelligentsia, having such strenuous membership requirements as eighteen hours "B" work in history and an accumulative "B" in all other courses. An additional six hours in history are necessary for initiation.

Initiations, which are held twice a year, are the highlights of the season. After the business is concluded, members gather at the Union or the Campus Grill for purely unhistorical get-togethers.

Fraternity meetings are held monthly in the Blue Room, and are usually short business sessions followed by round table discussions. These are centered around contemporary topics, and often guest speakers are invited to participate.

At one of the meetings, Captain John C. Hamilton, a member of the fraternity, spoke on "The Life of the Conservative Student at the Sorbonne." His talk was based on his own personal experience.

Dr. Henry M. Alexander, instructor of history and political science, gave a timely speech at a later meeting on "The Dumbarton Oaks Agreement."

The meetings, which are semi-social, exemplify the purpose of Phi Alpha Theta, which is to familiarize the student interest in history with recent discoveries and current events, and to provide an intelligent evaluation of these events.

PAN AMERICAN

The Pan-American League was organized for the purpose of creating a better feeling and understanding between the United States and Spanish speaking countries.

This year the league started off its activities with a "rush party," at which Spanish games were played and bingo was played in Spanish. If you didn't know your numerals it was too bad, because the numbers were called out in Spanish. At the end of the party cider, coffee, and cookies were served.

The Pan-American League meets twice a month on Thursday nights at seven-thirty in the Blue Room of the Student Union. At each meeting one Spanish speaking country is studied, and its music, literature and customs are compared to those of our country.

Several times during the year the League has had guest speakers who discuss the relations of our country to our sister nation south of the border, and other subjects of Pan-American interest.

The organization has approximately twenty members, all of whom have been very active in encouraging interest in Spanish. Almeria Cox is president, and Mr. McMillen is the faculty sponsor for the League.

Pan-American is not an honorary organization. Any person who has had two years of Spanish in high school or one year of college Spanish is eligible for membership. Or if you have had one quarter of Spanish and made a "B" you are eligible.

Each year Pan-American has a formal initiation for its new members, and in the spring Pan-American Day is celebrated. Programs are given during the day for members and their guests, and the day proves to be a very entertaining one.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Only the real intellect can sport a Phi Eta Sigma key. Before a man is initiated, he must make a five point average the first quarter of his freshman year or a cumulative five point for all three quarters.

Since the University has gone to war and the ASTRP has been stationed here, Phi Eta Sigma has been giving five point Junior Birdmen bids, too.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national honorary freshman men's fraternity and was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923. Its purpose is to encourage and promote scholarship among freshmen. In 1931, the Arkansas chapter was founded by the late Dean Ripley, making the twenty-fourth chapter in the United States. Dean Allen S. Humphreys is now the sponsor of this organization.

Phi Eta Sigma has two annual parties. The first, a smoker, is held in the fall and those men making the highest grades on the psychological entrance exams are invited. The fraternity encourages them in high scholarship standards and stresses the requirements for initiation into Phi Eta Sigma. The second annual activity is initiation, which is followed by a banquet in honor of the new members.

Each year in order to help freshmen get off to a good start in their college life, Phi Eta Sigma distributes a booklet on how to study.

Outstanding members of Phi Eta Sigma are Maurice Britt, Melvin Tucker, and Edward Seasly. Britt was a captain in the army, and was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor along with numerous other medals, making him a No. 1 hero of the war. Tucker and Seasly are bedecked with honors, too; both appearing in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges" this year.

Members of Pi Kappa, honorary organization for outstanding women journalists on the campus, found themselves in a sad state when they discovered at the beginning of the year that all their records including their constitution and ritual for initiation were missing from the Traveler office and were nowhere to be found. All they had to start the year on were two initiated members, six pledges, and a dusty replica of their pin which they found in Mr. Lemke's basement haven.

From the meager beginnings, however, the Pi Kappa girls have worked hard and have again reached the status of an active organization.

The two initiated members, Jean Carroll, president, and Eula Nell Edwards, secretary-treasurer, first decided to bring the six pledges into full membership privilege and then let the whole group work together and take as their project for the year the forming of a new constitution.

Marianne Wertheim was elected new president, and she has planned the reorganization with affiliation with the national organization for women journalists as her goal.

In the spring quarter a "smokerette" was held for prospective members, and late in the spring initiation for new members was held in the Blue Room of the Student Union.

Under the new constitution Pi Kappa members will have to have a 4 point in journalism and a 3 point in their other work.

The purpose of the organization is for the further advancement of journalistic work for women on the campus.

Informal meetings are held the first Monday of each month around the "slot" in the Traveler office.

Pi Kappa's chief aim in life is to be recognized by the Council of Honor Societies.

PI MU EPSILON

Pi Mu Epsilon faces one of the embarrassing sequences of war—superiority of women. Of its total membership of ten, three are girls, a ratio unprecedented in the history of the organization.

Mathematicians have been meeting since May 4, 1931, on the University of Arkansas campus to delve into the problems of “log logs” (their expression meaning logarithm) and curvatures. Pi Mu Epsilon is a national mathematical fraternity begun at Syracuse University on May 25, 1914. The local chapter was welcomed into the fold because of its high scholastic standing, and was accepted by all the other active chapters of Pi Mu Epsilon.

Its formal purpose is to promote high mathematical scholarship of the association, but activities of the group include the writing of humorous essays by pledges and biennial banquets. Spring and fall found Euclid followers dining to celebrate the pledging of new members, and a picnic followed in the late spring.

Only four pointers are considered for membership in Pi Mu Epsilon. Other requirements are: a cumulative grade point of 3.00, and completion of two quarters or one semester of calculus.

Membership usually goes to those who are active in other honoraries and campus activities. Edward Seasly, president, is also a member of Tau Beta Pi, Phi Eta Sigma, AIEE, and Blue Key. Bill Glassburn is president of AIEE and the Engin Council, and a member of ODK, Tau Beta Pi, and Theta Tau. Dan Whelchel and Bob Price are also active in AICH E, Dan being a member of the Engin Council, and Bob in Alpha Chi Sigma.

The end of this school calendar brings to a close the second year of organization of Phi Upsilon Omicron on this campus. This group is both honorary and professional, but membership is confined to Home Economics girls. Members are chosen on the basis of scholarship, service, character, and leadership, and to be eligible for membership, a girl must be in the upper two-fifths of her class. All second semester students desiring to join must have a three point grade average.

Early this fall, a dinner was held in honor of Dr. Henderson, newly appointed head of the Home Economics department. One result of this dinner was the making of a little profit on the side, so that Phi U could repay the loan that Alpha Zeta, honorary men's Agri organization, had made them last year. Two initiations were held, one in early fall, and the other in the Spring quarter, and in April Phi U celebrated its Founder's Day, having as guests several national officers.

Outstanding accomplishment of Phi Upsilon Omicron is the professional work project. After bringing the alumna files up to date for this year, the chapter planned a news letter to be sent to all recent graduates of the Home Ec department. Betty Teeter was editor of this news letter, and Mary Helen Moore was in charge of the professional work.

Twice monthly the group meets in the living room of the Home Economics building. Miss Zelpha Battey is the sponsor.

Among the outstanding members of Phi U are Martha Lou Foreman Wood, editor of this year's Agriculturist, Mary Helen Moore, Sara Aldridge, Alice Houston, and Helen Louise King, this year's president.

Phi U's purpose is to advance the study of Home Economics, and promote greater interest in that type of work. Incidentally, the girls learn to be pretty good home-makers.

PRE-MED CLUB

In order to further student interest in medical subjects, to discuss the current problems and developments of medicine, and to get better acquainted with each other, the pre-medical students of the campus are organized under the sponsorship of Dr. Samuel C. Dellinger, professor in the department of zoology, as the Pre-Med Club.

Any student enrolled in the university is eligible for membership in this society of the devotees of Hypocrates, provided he or she meets the one prerequisite—interest. Not even a pledge term is required. A pre-medical student's first attendance at a club meeting automatically instates him as a member in good standing.

The club is completing one of the most active years in its eleven years of history. A trip through the Veterans' Hospital near Fayetteville has long been a tradition with the club and proved especially interesting for the new members. That trip and the spring banquet came under the heading "annual highlights."

The semi-weekly meetings in the Chemistry building auditorium had their high-lights, too. At an early fall meeting, an educational movie entitled "Pavlov's Work on Conditioned Reflex" was shown. It was supplemented by a lecture from Dr. R. H. Waters of the university psychology department, who informed students of the more recent work on reflex action.

At a later meeting of the club, Dr. F. N. Goden, of the Veterans' Hospital, delivered an address on "Sulpha Drugs and Penicillin", and led the students in a round-table discussion of these medicines. At still another time, Dr. Barnett Sure presented Pre-Med Club members with information about the latest research developments on "Vitamin B Complex."

To be eligible to wear that key with the letters Psi and Chi on it, one must have at least twelve hours work in the Psychology department to his credit, must have a four point average in all Psychology courses and a three point average in all other subjects, and must be in the upper half of his class.

Psi Chi is an honorary fraternity for students of psychology, founded on September 4, 1929, during the Ninth International Congress of Psychology at New Haven, Connecticut. Today this group has thirty-six active chapters, well represented on campuses all over the United States, and the Arkansas chapter claims the distinction of being one of the thirteen charter members. Psi Chi was organized with the purpose of advancing the science of psychology, and encouraging, stimulating, and maintaining scholarship of the individual members in all academic fields, particularly in psychology.

Meetings of the national organization are held at the same time and place as those of the American Psychological Association. Annual sectional meetings are held when possible in connection with the corresponding sectional meetings of the Psychological Association.

Members of the local chapter meet on the first Sunday of each month and review articles from various psychological journals, give book reviews, and sometimes read original papers. These meetings are usually held at Dr. Waters' home, and turn into very enjoyable dinner parties before the evening is over.

Dr. David Causey and L. L. Hilton are faculty members belonging to Psi Chi, and Dr. Waters is the faculty sponsor of this group.

Faculty members and students alike approved of the "musical coffee hour" inaugurated by members of Sigma Alpha Iota this fall. On Wednesday afternoons in the record room of the Student Union, guests of the national musical fraternity met to enjoy their favorite recordings.

On other afternoons throughout the week the room was open to all those interested in music. Dr. Jordan presided over a program consisting of scheduled and requested selections.

The record room was but one way in which the purposes of Sigma Alpha Iota were furthered. The aim to better and enlarge the interest of music was also carried out nationally by a movement which sent phonographs and records overseas for the entertainment of service men.

Recordings also formed the basis of the program for the tea given in November by members for their music school faculty and the girls in which they were interested as pledges. Held at the Kappa house, its success may be determined by the pledging of eleven well-qualified girls.

Entrance requirements for Sigma Alpha Iota demand that a girl have a major or minor in music with a minimum grade point of four. An honorary, the organization also recognizes successful professional women in the musical world. Among the notable honorary members are Gladys Swarthout, Lily Pons, Kirsten Flagstad, Myra Hess, Helen Jepson, Gertrude Stein, and Rose Bampton.

The local chapter, Sigma Omicron, was organized December 1, 1925, and has enjoyed steady growth with a membership of outstanding students. Meetings are held the first and third Thursdays of each month in the SAI room in the music building. Each chapter is visited biennially by the province president. As a member of Zeta province Sigma Omicron entertained Miss Annelle Chandler of Tulsa.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

'Tis said that athletics are an important phase of university life, and WAA, Women's Athletic Association, believes that women students need athletics as well as men.

It is WAA that arranges and sponsors the games on the basketball and volleyball courts, the baseball diamond, and the hockey field, in which members of the various organized girls' houses compete. The spirit of friendly rivalry brought about by these games seems to really mean something to the girls—they are willing to play even if it means becoming slightly the worse for wear and disillusioning the one-and-only.

The earning of one WAA credit, which is awarded for practice or participation in at least one of the tournament sports, is the only requirement for membership in the Association.

The victorious Tri Delts headed the list of tournament champions this year by walking off with two first titles and one second. Next highest on the list were the Town girls.

Winners of the basketball tournament were: Tri Delts, first; Carnall, second. In the softball tournament Town captured first place with Tri Delts coming in second. The volleyball tournament found the Tri Delts leading again—Town made second. Pi Phi came to the top in the hockey tournament, with the Chi Omegas following and Town ranking third. Florence Stice, Pi Phi, was winner of the ping pong match with Gladys Taylor, Town, running a close second.

The ruling committee of WAA is the executive board which is composed of the officers of the Association and the sports manager.

Sponsor of WAA is Miss Margaret Kunz, instructor in Physical Education.

Sophomore Council is known as the "little sister" organization of Mortar Board. The counselors are chosen from the freshman class at the annual spring festival of the Association of Women Students. They are selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character, and participation in campus activities.

At the beginning of the fall quarter, each council member is assigned as advisor to a specified group of freshman women. Her big job is to help them in solving personal, scholastic, and social problems. Her first step, then, is to arrange with the individual girls for "coke dates" in the Union, to talk over all kinds of problems about classes, dress, and just "what's what" on the UA campus.

Since it was late in October, brightly colored leaves made a perfect setting for the annual Hallowe'en party given by Sophomore Council along with Mortar Board honoring freshman and transfer women students. There was never a dull moment when the program entitled "What the well-dressed college girls should wear" got under way because the interest in this subject was paramount.

To have an adequate number of counselors for this year's record enrollment of freshman women, the group increased its membership from twenty to twenty-five. Betty Ann Rice, Carnall Hall sophomore from Lonoke, served as chairman this year. Miss Jeannette Scudder, Dean of Women, is the sponsor of the organization.

TAU BETA PI

Each quarter a carefully selected group of outstanding junior and senior engineering students is initiated into Tau Beta Pi, national honorary engineering fraternity. Only men are eligible for membership, and they must be enrolled in a regular engineering course.

A prospective member of this honorary must have attended the university one year, and must be a junior in the upper eighth of his class or a senior in the upper fifth of his class.

After a student has satisfied the scholarship requirement, his work is not over, for this honorary requires that its members really earn the privilege they have been accorded. He must pass a 12 hour written examination and write a five hundred word theme on a non-technical subject. He is also required to make a walnut "bent" or key, with the Greek letters of Tau Beta Pi inlaid in white maple with dimensions correct to one thirty-second of an inch.

Each year Tau Beta Pi awards a slide rule to the honor freshman engineer, and this year Tommye Jean Coates, Davis Hall, was presented with the award. This is the first time the award has been made to a girl.

There are only four members this year, with Ed Seasly and Bill Glassburn holding the offices of president and vice-president respectively. When Roger Harris and Sam Smith graduated before Christmas, Ed and Bill were left to carry on as best they could, and with only two members to determine the policies of the group everything seemed to run smoothly.

Tau Beta Pi has its purpose: "To mark in a fitting manner those undergraduates who by their high scholarship and exemplary character have achieved worthwhile attainments in the college of Engineering."

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Wesley Foundation was organized for the purpose of making University students feel that they have "a home away from home," namely the University Church.

Its aim is the promotion of fellowship and understanding among Methodists. All activities stress this fellowship and try to make the students more united, providing devotional and recreational opportunities for college students.

Sunday morning services are held in Wesley Hall and the program is well rounded to fit each individual's interest and needs. Both practical Christianity and the international Sunday School lessons are taught, giving students a choice to attend either.

At five o'clock every Sunday evening Wesley Foundation conducts a period of recreation, giving students an opportunity to become better acquainted.

Active games and folk games are played, followed by the "dine-a-bit" hour, which is really "eat-a-bit." Then they sing for their supper, usually harmonizing on well-known folk songs. After this comes the serious part of the program—discussion of campus problems, student lead worship, a play given by the Wesley players, or talks given by professional men on vocations.

Each month Wesley Foundation gives a party for the members and friends. Late in October they began a series of parties—a Halloween party; in December, a Christmas party, after which they went caroling; in January, a Prophet party; and in February there was a Valentine party. To end the year, there was the Spring Picnic, an annual affair which is usually held at Ghost Hollow.

Mrs. J. E. Harris is the new director of Wesley Foundation, and the Rev. Paul Galloway acts as counsellor.

WESLEY PLAYERS

Although Wesley Players is sponsored by the Methodist Church, its membership includes all college students who are interested in studying, acting, and producing religious dramas.

Realizing that it is a far-cry back to the days when the sole purpose of plays was for religion, Wesley Players nevertheless stress the importance of the sacred dramas of today in an attempt to revive interest in the religious drama.

The group holds as its aim "promoting an interest for the advancement of religious drama." This interest is developed at their bi-monthly meetings, which are held in the Blue Room of the Student Union the first and third Mondays of each month.

Studies in some phases of drama are given at each meeting by various members of the organization, and plays are given several times a year.

The national organization of Wesley Players was founded in 1924 by a group of Methodist students on the University of Illinois campus. Kappa chapter was established on the Arkansas campus in 1931, being the first chapter installed in the south.

Membership is limited to fifty students, and members are required to have some talent, for they must take part in the plays themselves, or in the production of them. Students must have at least a two point grade average and work a certain number of hours before becoming full-fledged members.

This year they produced two short Christmas plays, a Demeter-Easter play, and one full religious drama. The plays were given for various church groups and for the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In April, Wesley Players entered into the party spirit by celebrating their founder's day with a banquet.

Y M C A

The Young Men's Christian Association is primarily an organization which works in coöperation with the churches to promote religious interest and friendship among students. The YMCA in Fayetteville was established March 22, 1887, and within a few years it was well-organized on the campus.

A survey is made at the beginning of the school year showing the religious preference of the students. The list is given to the local ministers and church workers, and the first Friday night of each school year is set aside by the University as "Church Night."

Through its program of informal parties, get-togethers, forums, etc., the "Y" for more than fifty years on this campus has provided students with recreation and an opportunity for formulating constructive religious theories and ideas.

During World War I, Mr. W. S. Gregson was appointed General Secretary of the YMCA and is now serving his twenty-seventh year as secretary. Besides being connected with the YMCA, Mr. Gregson was made an official "Arkansas Traveler" by former Governor Adkins, an honor coveted by all Arkansas men.

Soon after Mr. Gregson was appointed General

Secretary of YMCA he succeeded in getting a YMCA "Hut" established which was the chief "spot" for all social and religious functions. The soldiers on the campus during World War I used this "Hut" as the center of all their activities. Since that time, however, the "hut" has been done away with.

The YMCA membership is smaller this year as compared with several years back, but, of course, this is due to most of the men serving in the armed forces.

The YMCA is a world-wide organization, and it has produced prominent state and nation-wide leaders, many of whom were members of the YMCA on this campus.

In years gone by free picture shows were sponsored by YMCA groups and these were shown three times a week as a form of entertainment for all students.

A pledge, "We unite in the desire to live full and creative lives through a growing knowledge of God. We determine to have a part in making this life possible for all people; in this task we seek to understand Jesus and follow Him," expresses better the purpose of organization of YMCA.

The sister organization of the Young Men's Christian Association, the Young Women's Christian Association, was founded in England during the period of the Industrial Revolution in the form of a girls' boarding house for factory workers. The Y. W. spread to this country in 1905, and became known as the Young Women's Christian Association of the United States.

The Y. W. meets once a month in the game room of the Student Union, the cabinet meeting twice monthly. Programs for the year have included lectures by faculty members or guest speakers and discussions participated in by the members.

Of special interest was the pre-election program held in October at which platforms of both parties were presented. The special guest for the meeting was Jimmie Woodward, regional secretary of the Y. W. C. A. A group went with her to the Arkansas Area Conference at Conway for an all-day conference on program planning.

The February meeting featured Pete Oliver, Kappa Sigma, veteran of World War II, who spoke on the subject of the veterans on the college campuses.

The Y. W. has held a number of social events during the year, entertaining first night of the school year with its traditional party for all new students in the ballroom of the Union. The open-air Christmas party was not fated to be; it snowed.

The biggest project of the year was the Religious Emphasis Week, April 21-25, planned in conjunction with the Y. M. C. A. This week proved to be a profitable and inspirational experience for the campus. Among the guest speakers who attended was Rev. Blake Smith, pastor of the University Baptist Church in Austin, Texas, and a former pastor in Fayetteville.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Oldest Greek letter organization in America, Phi Beta Kappa is the pre-eminent honor society. It was founded at the College of William and Mary, December 5, 1776.

Early ideals of this fraternity may be summed up in the words fraternity, morality, and literature. One of the principal purposes was the promotion of free discussion of questions of interest to members.

Three years after the founding of Phi Beta Kappa, chapters were organized at Harvard and Yale, and these two chapters have largely determined the course of the fraternity's development, both in its general character and in the establishment of new chapters.

Phi Beta Kappa's purpose is to recognize and encourage scholarship, friendship, and cultural interests.

Membership is restricted to ten per cent of the candidates for the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree in the College of Arts and Sciences. Candidates are chosen on the basis of outstanding character, attainments, and scholarship. A minimum grade average of a 4.00 is prescribed, but in actual practice elections rarely fall below 4.50.

Selections from eligible students are made twice yearly, with initiation held soon after, followed by a dinner for faculty and student members. In the class of 1945, Roy Grantom and Arlene Miller were elected in the fall, and Lynnette Wilson and Ellen Wadley were chosen in the second quarter.

The Alpha chapter of Arkansas was installed at the University on April 4, 1932. Prior to the installation, Skull and Torch had been the outstanding organization with regard to scholarship in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Membership into Beta Gamma Sigma is the highest scholastic honor that can be attained by a student in the College of Business Administration. This organization is known as the Phi Beta Kappa of the Business School, membership being limited to the upper ten per cent of the senior class.

The Alpha chapter was installed on the University of Arkansas campus in 1932 when the Business School became a four-year college and its honor students were no longer eligible to wear a Phi Beta Kappa key. Dr. C. C. Fitchner, Dr. A. W. Jamison, and Professor W. B. Cole were instrumental in the founding of the Alpha chapter.

This organization is the only scholarship honor society in the field of Commerce and Business Administration that is recognized by the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business.

The Grand Chapter maintains a student loan fund for outstanding students.

This year, Doris Cook, a member of the junior class, was elected to membership because of her outstanding record in Business School. It is the first time since 1943 that any junior has been selected to join.

Doris is also president-elect, since Lou Alice Wright, graduating senior, will not be here next year.

Ann Dickinson and Virginia Pattillo graduated last August, but are still listed as members of the group, since their official graduation will not take place until June. Ann is now a member of the WAVES, and Virginia is working in Little Rock.

Each year it is the custom of Beta Gamma Sigma to choose a prominent business man of the state to become an honorary member.

Power for America . . .

Freedom of opportunity for every boy and girl to choose their own work and to progress as far and as fast as their initiative and ability will carry them, is the force that has made America great.

Efficient, low-cost electric power will be there to serve all production for progress. America's self-supporting, tax-paying light and power companies, producing over 80 percent of the nation's power, will see to that. Huge demands for power because of war have proved that these companies will never be too late with too little.

The American system of free merit enterprise has built a great industry and a great nation. The opportunities this way of life offers men and women will result in a continued progress and an even greater America.
